Section 9. No person, firm or corporation, licensed under the provisions of this ordinance, shall receive or buy from minors or unknown or irresponsible parties any scrap iron, brass, lead, copper or other materials, metals or rags, bones, commonly known as junk, and mentioned in this ordinance.

Section 10. The premises of all persons, firms or corporations, so licensed, shall be accessible at all times to the authorized representatives of the Bureau of Police of the Department of Public Safety of the said City of Pittsburgh, for the purpose of examining, inquiring into and searching for any articles and materials which may be received or purchased under the provisions of this ordinance, and the places of business conducted by Dealers of the First Class, or Merchants, so licensed, shall not open for the transaction of business before 7 A. M. and shall close promptly at 6 P. M. No license shall be granted to a Dealer of the First Class under this ordinance until after the same shall have been submitted to the Director of the Department of Public Health and by him approved as being in accordance with the laws of the State of Pennsylvania and the Ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh governing health and sanitation and with the rules and regulations of the Department of Public Health. Every person, firm and corporation, being licensed under the provisions of this ordinance, shall so conduct the business of such licensee that the same shall not amount to a nuisance, and the places of business, premises, vehicles and carriers of such licensees shall be subject during the business hours herein provided to inspection by the authorized representatives of the Department of Public Health of the City of Pittsburgh.

Section 11. If any person, firm or corporation shall violate one or more of the provisions or requirements of this ordinance, he, or it, shall upon conviction thereof before any police magistrate, of the City of Pittsburgh, be subject to a fine or penalty of not more than One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars for each and every violation thereof, and in default of the payment of any such fine imposed upon any person, such person shall be confined in the Allegheny County Jail or Workhouse for not more than thirty days.

AN ORDINANCE—Authorizing and regulating the use of bricks, hollow building tile and hollow or solid concrete blocks in the construction of foundation, enclosing, division, and party walls for dwelling houses; fixing the maximum allowable unit stress for timber used for wood joists in the foregoing; and providing penalties for the violation hereof.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That from and after the approval of this ordinance the following requirements regulating the use of hollow building tile, and hollow or solid concrete blocks in the construction of foundation, enclosing, division, and party walls for dwelling houses, fixing the maximum allowable unit stress for timber used for wood joists in the foregoing, and providing penalties for the violation hereof shall be in full force and effect.

SECTION 2. MATERIALS.

(a) QUALITY: The minimum allowable compressive strength of hollow building tile of clay or shale for this purpose shall be 1,200 pounds per square inch, and of any make of hollow concrete block shall be 900 pounds per square inch, of gross sectional area as determined by test.

For said test, a sample wall shall be laid with the materials and in the manner in which it is intended to serve. Said test wall shall have the total thickness of the wall to be built, its length shall be not less than four units or blocks for the bottom layer, three units or blocks on the second, and two units or blocks on the top, laid with broken bond as is the custom in properly built wall construction.

(b) ALLOWABLE UNIT STRESS: The maximum allowable unit stress for walls built of said hollow building tile shall be 250 pounds per square inch, and for walls built of said hollow concrete block 175 pounds per square inch of gross sectional area.

SECTION 3.

FOUNDATION WALLS.

Foundation walls of the foregoing materials hereafter erected shall conform to the following requirements:

(a) CONSTRUCTION: All such tile or block shall be laid in Portland cement mortar not leaner than one part cement to three parts sand. Replacement of 10 per cent of the cement by 20 per cent thereof by volume of hydrated lime is hereby permitted.

All outside or enclosing foundation walls of hollow building tile or hollow concrete block shall be properly drained at the footing course and shall be waterproofed so as to prevent the accumulation of water. Said waterproofing shall be done by the application of Portland cement stucco, asphalt, pitch or other similar outside coating; or in lieu of said coating, glazed hollow building tile or waterproofed concrete block shall be permitted.

(b) THICKNESS: Said foundation walls shall be at least two inches thicker than the walls next above them and provided with pilasters or buttresses, or masonry cross walls where required for the walls above. Such pilasters and buttresses shall conform to the requirements hereinafter provided.

SECTION 4.

ENCLOSING, PARTY, AND DIVISION WALLS.

DIVISION WALL: Any masonry wall designed and constructed for the purpose of separating occupancies within the same or different structures.

PARTY WALL: A wall to be used by two or more owners or interests, erected partly or wholly in common and paralleling the line between abutting properties.

(a) ENCLOSING WALLS: The minimum allowable thickness of said masonry enclosing walls of the foregoing materials shall be as follows, and the heights given shall be measured from the under side of the first floor joist:

I. For houses not over 35 feet in height, said minimum allowable thickness shall be 8 inches for the uppermost 20 feet of the wall when reinforced with buttresses, pilasters, or stud cross partitions securely anchored and braced, or masonry cross walls not farther apart than 20 feet; and the minimum allowable thickness shall be 12 inches for the next lower 15 feet of the wall. All changes in thickness given shall be applied to the nearest floor level to the height specified.

II. For said houses the walls may be 8 inches thick for the full height if not exceeding a height of 24 feet to the square of the roof or 35 feet to the gable point, provided same are reinforced with buttresses, pilasters, or stud cross partitions securely anchored or braced, or with masonry cross walls not farther apart than 20 feet.

Mansard roofs are not permitted under the regulations of this paragraph.

(b) PARTY AND DIVISION WALLS: The minimum allowable thickness of party and division walls of the foregoing materials for said houses shall be the same as hereinbefore set forth for enclosing walls except that where there is a basement on both sides of same, no increase in thickness of basement or cellar story walls is required.

Where party and division walls for said houses do not pass through the roof they shall be carried up to and be finished tight against the under side of the sheathing.

SECTION 5.

MISCELLANEOUS REQUIREMENTS.

(a) PILASTERS AND BUTTRESSES: When used for reinforcing walls and foundations, pilasters and buttresses shall be not less than 12 inches in width in the direction of the wall, and not less than 4 inches in addition to the thickness of the wall.

Chimney breasts may be taken as masonry pilasters or buttresses.

(b) FACED WALLS: Whenever said walls are faced with brick, stone or other similar forms of masonry, such facing shall be counted in the thickness of the wall only when bonded thereto with true masonry header courses not farther apart than 24 inches, or metal ties consisting of not less than 3-16 inch by 1 1-2 inch in section which shall be spaced not more than 12 inches apart horizontally and not more than 24 inches vertically and staggered.

(c) EXCESSIVE OPENINGS: Whenever the horizontal section through said masonry bearing walls shows more than 40 per cent area of windows or other openings, that part of the wall where said openings exist shall be increased 4 inches in thickness over the minimum requirements herein provided for every 20 per cent or fraction thereof in excess of 40 per cent, or masonry piers, cross walls or buttresses may be provided as hereinbefore defined in paragraph (a) in lieu of such increase in thickness of the wall.

This requirement shall not be taken to apply to open or enclosed porches not supporting a story above, the piers of which are not over 12 feet in height measured from the under-side of the first floor joist. All such porch piers or walls shall be properly designed to carry the full loads and to resist the thrust of arches.

(d) CHASES: No chase shall extend into any wall more than one-third of its thickness. All horizontal chases shall be solidly backfilled with masonry and mortar. No chase shall be made or kept in the required area of any pier, pilaster or buttress. The cutting of chases in an eight-inch wall shall be prohibited, but a chase may be built in by properly formed masonry.

(e) RECESSES: Whenever recesses are left in walls or foundations the thickness of the remaining wall shall be not less than two-thirds of the required thickness. Said recesses shall be arched over or spanned with lintels and supported and braced by adequate buttresses, pilasters, piers or columns whenever necessary.

SECTION 6.

JOISTS OR BEAMS.

(a) BEARING: All joists or beams shall extend into and have a bearing of at least four inches upon the wall. Said bearing shall be by means of horizontal bearing block of the foregoing materials unless the full bearing of four inches is provided by means of the hollow or solid block of which the wall is constructed.

(b) UNIT STRESSES: The maximum allowable unit stresses on the extreme fibre in bending shall be that in the following schedule for the given kinds of woods:

	Pounds per sq. in.
Douglas Fir, Long Leaf Yellow
Pine and Oak	1500
Short Leaf Yellow Pine, Norway
Pine or Spruce	1000
Hemlock	600
All calculations to be based upon accepted engineering formulae.

SECTION 7.

Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, upon the conviction thereof, before any Alderman or Police Magistrate of the City of Pittsburgh, be subject to a fine not exceeding $100.00 and costs for any one offense and, in default of payment of said fine and costs, shall be subject to imprisonment in the County Jail for a period not exceeding thirty (30) days.

SECTION 8.

That any ordinance or part of ordinance, conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this ordinance.

No. 242

AN ORDINANCE — Regulating the planning, design, construction, alteration, addition to, arrangement and installation of electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, and wiring or appurtenances thereto; requiring that unsafe installations of the same be made and kept safe; regulating the manner of issuing permits; and providing penalties for violations of the provisions hereof; all with a view to preventing loss of life, limb or property.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That from and after the passage and approval of this ordinance the following provisions regulating the planning, design, construction, alteration, additions to, arrangement, and installation of electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, and wiring or appurtenances thereto; requiring that unsafe installations of the same be made and kept safe; regulating the manner of issuing permits; and providing penalties for violations of the provisions hereof, shall be in full force and effect.

Section 2. (1) Short Title: This ordinance shall hereafter be known as the Electrical Regulations.

(2) Intent: This ordinance is enacted to provide for the safe and sufficient planning, design, construction, alteration, additions to, arrangement, and installation of electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, and wiring or appurtenances thereto, and to require that unsafe installations of the same be made and kept safe, all with a view of preventing loss of life, limb or property, and shall be so construed.

AUTHORITY AND PROCEDURE.

Section 3. (1) Authority to Inspect: The Superintendent and inspectors of the Bureau of Building Inspection are hereby given authority to enter any building at reasonable hours and to inspect and test electrical installations without unnecessary delay and to order the removal of such portions of the building as may be necessary to make said inspection.

(2) Permit: From and after the approval of this ordinance, a construction permit shall be obtained in the manner provided in an Ordinance Conferring Certain Powers and Duties Upon the Department of Public Safety and the Bureau of Building Inspection, known as the Administrative Sections, whenever any electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto is to be constructed, altered or repaired.

Each application for permit shall describe fully and completely the work to be done under same in such manner that it can be checked properly and kept on record in the Bureau of Building Inspection, and each application shall be taken to cover the work to be done by the applicant for permit.

Upon completion of the first or rough wiring an inspector and such tests as the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection may deem necessary shall be made and a certificate issued.

When the installation is complete and all fixtures, apparatus, equipment, devices, and appurtenances are in place, an inspection and such tests as said Superintendent may deem necessary shall be made and a certificate issued. Said certificate shall be issued in the manner provided in an Ordinance Conferring Certain Powers and Duties Upon the Department of Public Safety and the Bureau of Building Inspection, and said certificate shall set forth that the installation is in accordance with the requirements of this ordinance.

(3) Revocation of Permits: The Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection shall have power to revoke permits after the proper inspections and tests have been made whenever any electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto, is being constructed, altered, repaired, or equipped in violation of this ordinance and the same held revoked until the records of the Bureau of Building Inspection shall show compliance with the requirements hereof, at which time said Superintendent shall have power to renew said permit.

Section 4. (1) Control of Unsafe Installations: Whenever any electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring, or appurtenances thereto may be found by the electrical inspector of the Bureau of Building Inspection to be defective or unsafe for the purpose for which it is used, after proper inspection and tests have been made, or liable to cause injury to persons or property, the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection shall have power to condemn such electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto, as may be necessary, and he shall have authority to order the use of any such electrical apparatus to be discontinued until same is made safe. Such order shall be in writing and shall state the nature and extent of the unsafe conditions.

The requirements and provisions of this ordinance shall constitute the authority upon which said safety shall be determined.

SECTION 5.

Test Requirements and Approval of Electrical Equipment, Apparatus, Devices, Wiring and Appurtenances Thereto.

All electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto installed or used in any electrical construction or installation regulated by the terms of this ordinance shall be properly designed and constructed, and be safe and suitable for the purposes intended.

No such electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto shall be installed or used until the same shall be first approved by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection in all cases where such approval is required by this ordinance, and true samples thereof shall have passed the standard tests made by the Bureau of Standards, Washington, D. C., or the Underwriters Laboratories, Inc., Chicago.

Any electrical equipment, apparatus, materials, devices, wiring or appurtenances thereto that may have been approved and labeled by the Underwriters Laboratories, Inc., shall be accepted as meeting the requirements and provisions of this ordinance.

SECTION 6.

CLASS A. REGULATIONS.

Requirements for Electrical Equipment of Central Stations, Dynamo, Motor and Storage-Battery Rooms, Transformer Sub-Stations, and like Electrical Equipment.

(1) GENERATORS:

(a) Must be located in a dry place.
(b) Must never be placed in a room where any hazardous process is carried on, nor in places where they would be exposed to inflammable gasses or fumes of combustible materials.

(c) Must, when operating at a potential in excess of 550 volts, have their frames grounded as provided in No. 15A.

Must, when operating at a potential of 550 volts or less, have their frames grounded as provided in No. 15A when this is practicable. When this is impracticable special permission in writing may be given for omitting the ground connection, in which case the frame must be permanently and effectively insulated. Wooden base frames used for this purpose and wooden floors which are depended upon for insulation where for any reason it is necessary to omit the base frames, must be kept filled to prevent absorption of moisture and must be kept clean and dry.

(d) Constant potential generators, except alternating current machines and their exciters, must be protected from excessive current by safety fuses or equivalent devices of approved design.

For two-wire D. C. generators, single pole protection will be considered as satisfying the above rule, provided the safety device is so located and connected that the means for opening same is actuated by the entire generator current and the action thereof will completely open the generator circuit.

If a generator not electrically driven supplies a two-wire grounded system, the safety device or devices must be so placed as to disconnect the generator from all conductors of the circuit.

For two-wire D. C. generators used in conjunction with balancer sets to obtain a neutral for three-wire systems, a protective device must be installed, which in case of the excessive unbalancing of voltages will operate to disconnect the three-wire system.

For three-wire direct current generators compound or shunt wound, a safety device must be placed in each armature lead, and so connected as to receive the entire current from the armature. Fuses will not be acceptable. The safety device must consist of either: (1) a double pole, double coil, overload circuit breaker, or (2) a four-pole circuit breaker connected in the main and equalizer leads, and tripped by means of two overload devices, one in each armature lead.

The safety devices above required must be so interlocked that no one pole can be opened without simultaneously disconnecting both sides of the armature from the system.

(e) Must each be provided with a name-plate, giving the maker's name, the rating in kilowatts for D. C. KVA for A. C., the normal volts and amperes corresponding to this rating, also the speed in revolutions per minute.

(f) Terminal blocks when used on generators must be made of approved incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material, such as slate, marble or porcelain.

(g) The use of soft rubber bushings to protect the lead wires coming through the frames of generators is permitted, except when installed where oils, grease, oily vapors, or other substances known to have rapid deleterious effect on rubber are present in such quantities and in such proximity to generator as may cause such bushings to be liable to rapid destruction. In such cases hardwood properly filled, or preferably porcelain or micanite bushings must be used.

(2) CONDUCTORS:

(For construction rules see No. 49 to 57.)

From generators to switchboards, rheostats or other instruments and thence to outside lines:

(a) Must be exposed to view and supported on approved incombustible, non-absorptive insulators or placed in approved metal conduit, tile or other fireproof ducts. Conductors installed in conduit or ducts where exposed to moisture must be lead sheathed and the sheathing must be grounded. Except for low potential systems the insulation of the several conductors where leaving the metal sheath of cables must be thoroughly protected from moisture and mechanical injury by means of a pot-head or some equivalent method.

(b) Must have an approved insulating covering as called for by rules in Class "C" for similar work, except that where conductors are closely grouped as on switchboards, in wire towers, cableways, and similar apparatus, the conductors must each have a substantial flame-proof outer covering. Bus-bars if rigidly mounted, may be made of bare metal.

Flameproofing must be stripped back on all conductors a sufficient distance from the terminals to give the necessary insulation for the voltage of the circuit on which the conductor is used.

(c) Must where not in conduit be kept so rigidly in place that they cannot come in contact. Where they pass through floors or fire walls they must be carried through individual openings in incombustible non-absorptive insulating tubes or their equivalent and not through a common open space.

(d) Must in all other respects be installed with the same precautions as required by rules in Class "C" for wires carrying a current of the same volume and potential.

(e) In wiring switchboards the ground detector, voltmeter, pilot lights and potential transformers must be connected to a circuit of not less than No. 14 B. & S. gage wire that is protected by approved fuses. This circuit is not to carry over 660 watts.

For the protection of instruments and pilot lights on switchboards approved enclosed fuses of not over two ampere capacity may be used.

(3) SWITCHBOARDS:

(a) Must be so placed as to reduce to a minimum the danger of communicating fire to adjacent combustible material.

Switchboards must not be built up to the ceiling, a space of three feet being left, if possible, between the ceiling and the board. The space back of the board must be kept clear of rubbish and must not be used for storage.

(b) Must be made of incombustible material.

(c) Must be accessible from all sides when the connections are on the back, but may be placed against a brick or stone wall when the wiring is entirely on the face.

If the wiring is on the back, there must be a clear space of at least eighteen inches between the wall and the apparatus on the board.

(d) Must be kept free from moisture.

(e) Insulated conductors where closely grouped as in rear of switchboards must each have a substantial flameproof outer covering.

Flameproofing must be stripped back on all conductors a sufficient distance from the terminals to give the necessary insulation for the voltage of the circuit on which the conductor is used.

(4) RESISTANCE DEVICES:

(For construction rules see Nos. 78, 79 and 80.)

(a) Must be placed on a switchboard, or at a distance of at least one foot from combustible material, or separated therefrom by a slab or panel of incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material such as slate, soapstone or marble somewhat larger than the rheostat, which must be secured in position independently of the rheostat supports. Bolts for supporting the rheostat shall be countersunk at least one-eighth inch below the surface at the back of the slab and the bolt heads shall be covered with insulating materials. For proper mechanical strength, slab should be of a thickness consistent with the size and weight of the rheostat, and in no case to be less than one-half inch.

If resistance devices are installed in rooms where dust or combustible flyings would be liable to accumulate on them, they must be equipped with dust-proof face plates.

(b) Where protective resistances are necessary in connection with automatic rheostats, incandescent lamps may be used, provided that they do not carry or control the main current nor constitute the regulating resistance of the device.

When so used, lamps must be mounted in porcelain receptacles upon incombustible supports, and must be so arranged that they cannot have impressed upon them a voltage greater than that for which they are rated. They must in all cases be provided with name plate, which shall be permanently attached beside the porcelain receptacle or receptacles and stamped with the wattage and voltage of the lamp or lamps to be used in each receptacle.

Under special authorization in writing, given in advance, incandescent lamps may be used for the purpose of resistance in series with other devices when mounted in porcelain receptacles upon incombustible supports, and so arranged that they cannot have impressed upon them a voltage greater than that for which they are rated.

(c) Wherever insulated wire is used for connection between resistance elements and the contact device of a rheostat, the insulation must be incombustible, or "slow burning." For large rheostats and similar resistance where the contact devices are not mounted upon them the connecting wires having "slow-burning" insulation may be so arranged in groups that the maximum difference of potential between any two wires in any group shall not exceed seventy-five volts. Each group of wires must either be mounted on incombustible, non-absorptive, insulators, giving at least one-half inch separation from surface wired over, or especially where it is necessary to protect same from mechanical injury, each group of wires may be encased in approved flexible tubing and placed in approved conduit, the flexible tubing to extend at least one inch beyond the ends of the conduit.

(5) LIGHTNING ARRESTERS:

(a) Must be attached to each wire of every overhead circuit connected with the station.

(b) Must be located in readily accessible places away from combustible materials, and as near as practicable to the point where the wires enter the building.

In all cases, kinks, coils and sharp bends in the wires between the arresters and the outdoor lines must be avoided as far as possible.

(c) Must be well isolated from all other equipment and if of the oil immersed type must be located outside or in a fireproof room or compartment on the premises.

Must be grounded as provided in No. 15A.

(d) All choke coils or other attachments, inherent to the lightning protection equipment shall have an insulation from the ground or other conductors equal at least to the insulation demanded at other points of the circuit in the station.

(6) Left blank for future use.

(7) GROUND DETECTORS:

All circuits except such as are permanently grounded as provided in No. 15A, must be provided with reliable ground detectors. Detectors which indicate continuously and give an instant and permanent indication of a ground are preferable. Ground connection must be made as provided in No. 15A.

(8) MOTORS:

(a) Must, when operating at a potential in excess of 550 volts, have no exposed live metal parts and have their frames grounded, as provided in No. 15A.

Must when operating at a potential of 550 volts or less have their frames grounded, as provided in No. 15A, when this is practicable. When this is impracticable special permission in writing may be given for omitting the ground connection in which case the frame must be permanently and effectively insulated. Wooden base frames used for this purpose and wooden floors which are depended upon for insulation where for any reason it is necessary to omit the base frames, must be kept filled to prevent absorption of moisture and must be kept clean and dry.

(b) Motors operating at a potential of 550 volts or less must be wired with the same precautions as required by rules in Class "C" for wires carrying a current of the same volume.

Motors operating at a potential between 550 and 3,500 volts must, except in central or sub-stations, be wired with approved multiple conductor, metal sheathed cable in approved metal conduit. All apparatus and wiring connected to the high tension circuit must be completely enclosed in substantial metal shields or casings and the conduit must enter and be properly secured to such casings or to suitable terminal boxes screwed or bolted to the casings. Shields, casings and conduit must be grounded as provided in No. 15A.

The insulation of the several conductors for high potential motors, where leaving the metal sheath of cables must be thoroughly protected from moisture and mechanical injury. This may be accomplished by means of a pot head or some equivalent method. The conduit must be substantially bonded to the metal casings of all fittings and apparatus connected to the inside high tension circuit. Except where exposed to moisture a metal sheath need not be provided over splices, but the ends of the sheaths must be belled out and sheaths must be bonded around splices by No. 6 B. & S. gage copper wire and approved ground clamps.

Where motors operating at a potential between 550 and 3,500 volts are located in a special room or vault adjoining an outside wall and the conductors entering from the outside are not in conduit the conductors may be rigidly supported on glass or porcelain insulators, which keep them at least one inch from the surface wired over, and not less than eight inches apart except at motors and devices.

Conductors carrying the current of only one motor must be designed to carry a current at least 10 per cent greater than that for which the motor is rated. Where the conductors under this rule would be overfused in order to provide for the starting current, as in the case of many of the alternating current motors, the conductors must be of such size as to be properly protected by these larger fuses.

To provide for the peak loads which are encountered in certain classes of service, such as those mentioned in the following table. Without overfusing the conductors, motors will sometimes require cables considerably larger than those specified in the preceding paragraph. In the majority of cases the necessary requirements will be met if conductors are based on the following percentages of the name plate rating:

Classification of Service	Percentages of Name Plate Rating
	5 Min.	10 & 15 Min.	30 & 60 Min.
	Rating Rating Rating
Operating valves raising or lowering rolls	110	120	150
Rolling tables	110	120	135
Hoists, rolls, ore and coal-handling machines	110	115	120
Freight and passenger elevators, shop cranes, tool heads, pumps and similar apparatus	110	110	110
2-hour Continuous
Rating Rating
Operating valves raising or lowering rolls	200		250
Rolling tables	180		200
Hoists, rolls, ore and coal-handling machines	150		170
Freight and passenger elevators, shop cranes, tool heads, pumps and similar apparatus	120		140

(c) Each motor with its starting device must be protected by a cut-out and controlled by a switch (see No. 19a), said switch plainly indicating whether "on" or "off" (except as provided for electric cranes, see No. 42c). Small motors may be grouped under the protection of a single set of fuses.

provided the rated capacity of the fuses does not exceed 10 amperes and the total wattage of the circuit does not exceed 660. With motors of one-fourth horsepower or less, on circuits where the voltage does not exceed 300, single pole switches may be used as allowed in No. 24c. The switch and rheostat must be located within sight of the motor, except in cases where special permission to locate them elsewhere is given in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Except for auto-starters the switch called for in the preceding paragraph may be omitted where the motor starter disconnects all wires of the circuit. When auto-starters are used a switch must be provided on the supply side of each auto-starter, or group of auto-starters. When an A. C. starter when in running position opens all wires of the circuit automatically under overload it may also serve as a circuit breaker. When the overload release device of a D. C. starter is inoperative during the process of starting the motor a separate circuit breaker or set of fuses must be provided.

An automatic circuit breaker disconnecting all wires of the circuit may also serve as a switch.

Where a rubber-covered conductor carries the current of only one A. C. motor of a type requiring large starting current it may be protected by a fuse or an automatic circuit breaker without time limit device, rated in accordance with Table B. of No. 13. The rated continuous current capacity of a time limit breaker protecting a motor of the above type need not be greater than 110 per cent of the motor current rating, providing the time limit device is capable of preventing the breaker opening during the starting period.

Alternating current motors operating freight or passenger elevators or cranes, that are dependent on phase relation for the direction of rotation, must be protected by approved automatic circuit breakers (or reverse phase relay) operative in the event of any phase reversal that would cause a reverse motor rotation, or in the event of the motor being connected to the line single phase.

(d) Rheostats must be so installed as to comply with all the requirements of No. 4. Auto starters must comply with requirements of No. 4 (c).

Where there is any liability of short circuits across the exposed live parts of an auto starter by accidental contacts, a railing must be erected around them.

(e) Must not be run in series-multiple or multiple-series except on constant potential systems. Departure from this rule may be authorized only under special permission in writing from the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

(f) Must, if deemed necessary, be enclosed in an approved case.

Such enclosure must be readily accessible, dustproof, and sufficiently ventilated to prevent an excessive rise of temperature. Where practicable the sides should be made largely of glass, so that the motor may be always plainly visible.

Motors used in dusty places or in places where sparking of the motor is liable to set fire to inflammable gases or other substances must be of the enclosed type.

Motors permanently located on wooden floors must be provided with suitable drip pans.

(g) Must each be provided with a name plate, giving the maker's name, the capacity in volts and amperes, the normal full load, speed, and the interval during which they can safely operate, starting cold. The time interval given must be either 5, 10, 15, 30, 60 or 120 minutes, or continuous. This does not apply to motors for railway service.

(h) Terminal blocks when used on motors must be made of approved incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material such as slate, marble or porcelain.

(i) Adjustable speed motors, unless of special and appropriate design, if controlled by means of field regulations, must be so arranged and connected that they cannot be started under weakened field.

(j) The use of soft rubber bushings to protect the lead wires coming through the frames of motors is permitted, except when installed where oils, grease, oily vapors or other substances known to have rapid deleterious effect on rubber are present in such quantities and in such proximity to motors as may cause such bushings to be liable to rapid destruction. In such cases hardwood properly filled, or preferably porcelain or micaite bushings must be used.

(9) FEEDER PROTECTION:

Each constant potential circuit entering or leaving a supply station, except grounded rail return conductors of railway power plants or grounded neutral conductors of three wire systems, must be protected from excessive current by an approved automatic overload circuit breaker or by an equivalent device of approved design. Such protective devices must be located as near as practicable to point where conductors enter or leave the building. For outgoing circuits not connected with other sources of power, however, the protective devices must be placed on the supply-side of transformers or similar devices.

Oil circuit-breakers and switches must wherever practicable be isolated from other switches and electrical apparatus. On circuits of over 7,500 volts they must be of the remote control type and be enclosed in separate fire-proof cells or compartments.

(10) STORAGE OR PRIMARY BATTERIES:

(a) When current for light and power is taken from primary or secondary batteries, the same general regulations must be observed as apply to similar apparatus fed from generators, developing the same difference of potential.

(b) Storage battery rooms must be thoroughly ventilated.

(c) In all rooms where acid fumes exist wiring must be done as required in Rule No. 26. (i).

(d) All secondary batteries must be mounted on non-absorptive, incombustible insulators, such as glass or thoroughly vitrified and glazed porcelain.

(e) The use of any metal liable to corrosion must be avoided in cell connections of secondary batteries.

(11) TRANSFORMERS:

(See also Nos. 36 and 45. For construction rules see No. 81.)

(a) In central or sub-stations, transformers of oil cooled type must always be placed in incombustible buildings or structures. Said buildings or structures must be furnished with a floor drain to carry the oil away or else with incombustible, sills, dams, sumps, or other equivalent means for preventing the spread of the oil. In central or substations transformers of the air-cooled type must be isolated from all other equipment as required for oil-cooled transformers, and wherever air-blast cooling is used the air must be supplied through fireproof flues or ducts.

In central and sub-stations, casings of transformers must be grounded as provided in No. 15A.

(b) The cases or frames of transformers used exclusively to supply current to switchboard instruments must be grounded as provided in No. 15A, unless they are installed and guarded in all respects as required for the higher voltage circuit connected to them.

CLASS C. REGULATIONS.

REQUIREMENTS FOR INSIDE WORK.

ALL SYSTEMS AND VOLTAGES.
GENERAL RULES.

(15A) Method of Grounding, when Protective Grounding is Required:

(What to ground see Nos. 1-c, 1-d, 5-c, 7-a, 8-a, b, 11-b, 25-c, 27-c, 28-f, 29-c, 43-e, 45-c, 86-b.)

(a) GENERAL PROVISIONS:

Where low potential circuits are grounded under the following rules, circuits must be so arranged that under normal conditions of service there will be no appreciable passage of current over the ground conductor.

When arrestors, equipment, wire race-ways, and similar devices are grounded under the following rules, ground connections must be so disposed and underground piping systems so inter-connected, that there shall, under normal conditions, be no appreciable passage of current over the ground conductor.

DIRECT CURRENT SYSTEMS.

POINT OF ATTACHMENT.

(b) In three-wire direct-current systems the ground connection must be made on the neutral and at one or more supply stations, but not at individual services or within building served.

(c) In two-wire direct-current systems the ground connection must be at one station only.

ALTERNATING-CURRENT SYSTEMS.

POINT OF ATTACHMENT.

(d) The ground connection for alternating current systems must be made at the building service or near the transformer (or transformers) either by direct ground connection through water piping system or artificial ground or by the use of a system ground wire to which are connected the grounded conductors of many secondary mains and which itself is effectually grounded at intervals that will fulfill, for any secondary utilizing the system ground wire, the resistance and current-carrying requirements for Ground Conductors Section (k) and Ground Connection Section (t).

Where the secondaries of transformers are supplying a common set of mains, fuses if installed must be installed only at such points as will not cause the loss of the ground connections after any fuses in the transformer circuits or mains have been blown.

Multiple grounds are preferable in most cases, but grounds, other than the single ground connections at the building service, must not be made to alternating current secondaries within the building served.

(e) In single phases, three-wire systems, the ground must be on the neutral conductor.

(f) In single phase, two-wire systems, the ground may be on either of the conductors.

(g) In two-wire single phase, and in two or three phase systems, the ground must be connected at that point of the system which brings about the lowest voltage from ground of unguarded current-carrying parts of connected devices and also permits of most convenient grounding. Where any phase of a two or three phase system is used for lighting, that phase must be grounded and the neutral conductor, if one is used.

LIGHTING ARRESTERS AND GROUND DETECTORS.

(h) For lighting arresters, and ground detectors the ground connection must be at such a point that its ground conductor is as short and straight as practicable.

EQUIPMENT AND WIRE RACEWAYS.

(i) For generators, motors, transformers, conduits, armored cable, metal raceways, and similar devices, the point at which the ground conductor is attached must, if practicable, be readily accessible.

For conduit, armored cable or metal raceways the ground conductor must be as near as practicable to the point where the conductors in the conduit system concerned receive their supply.

When the service conduit is grounded, its ground conductor must be run direct from it to the ground connection. The interior conduit, armored cable or metal raceways, if well bonded to service conduit, grounded as provided in this rule, needs no additional ground connection.

GROUND CONDUCTORS.

(j) In all cases the ground conductor must be of copper or other metal which will not corrode excessively under the existing conditions, and if practicable must be without joint or splices.

The insulation and installation of the ground conductor for circuits must comply with all the requirements of this ordinance for wires of the voltage of the circuit to which the ground conductor is attached and must have after January 1, 1919, an identifying covering. In all cases the ground conductor must be protected against mechanical injury. Protection for lightning arrester ground conductors must be of non-magnetic material unless the ground conductor is electrically connected to both ends of the protective device. In no case shall an automatic cut-out be inserted in a ground conductor or connection, except in ground conductors for equipment where its operation will disconnect all leads connected to the equipment from the circuit conductors.

(k) The ground conductor or conductors for circuits must, in general, have combined current capacity sufficient to insure the continuity and continued effectiveness of the ground connection under conditions of excess current caused by accidental grounding of any normally undergrounded conductor of the circuit.

The ground conductor for a three-wire direct-current system must have a combined current capacity not smaller than the neutral wire to which it is attached.

The ground conductor for alternating current systems must not be smaller than No. 6 copper wire, nor smaller than one-fifth the current capacity of the wire to which it is attached, except that it need not be larger than No. 0 copper wire.

Lightning arrester ground connections must not be made to the same artificial ground (driven pipes or buried plates) as circuits or equipment, but must be well spaced and when practicable kept at least 20 feet from other artificial grounds.

(l) For lightning arresters the ground conductor must have a current capacity sufficient to insure the continuity and continued effectiveness of the ground connection under conditions of excess current caused by or following discharge of arrester.

No individual ground conductor shall have a smaller current capacity than No. 6 B. & S. gage copper wire.

(m) For the frames of electrical equipment the current capacity of the ground conductor must not be less than that provided by copper wire of the size indicated in the following table.

With portable equipment protected by fuses not greater than 15 amperes. No. 14 ground wire may be used.

Capacity of nearest cut-out protecting the equipment.	Required size of ground conductor
0 to 100 amperes.	No. 10 B. & S. gage
101 to 200 amperes.	No. 6 B. & S. gage
201 to 500 amperes.	No. 4 B. & S. gage
501 amperes and above	No. 2 B. & S. gage

The grounded circuit wires must not be used as ground wire for equipment and devices and ground conductors from equipment and devices must not be connected to grounded circuit wires.

(n) If an armored cable system, a conduit system or a metal raceway system, consist of several separate sections, the sections must be bonded to each other, and the system grounded, or each section may be separately grounded.

The armor of conduits, cables, metal raceways and gas pipes must either be securely fastened in outlet boxes, junction boxes and cabinets, so as to secure good electrical connection or the separate sections, boxes and cabinets must be separately grounded.

Where short sections of conduit (or pipe of equivalent strength) are used for the protection of exposed wiring on side walls and such conduit or pipe and wiring is installed as required in No. 26 e, the conduit or pipe need not be grounded.

Ground wires must be of copper or other metal which will not corrode excessively under the existing conditions. They must be at least equivalent to No. 10 B. & S. gage copper (where largest wire contained is not greater than No. 0 B. & S. gage) and need not be greater than No. 4 B. & S. gage (where the largest wire contained is greater than No. 0 B. & S. gage,) and for service conduit the ground shall not be less than No. 6 B. & S. gage copper.

The grounded circuit wires must not be used as ground wire for conduits, cables, metal raceways, and ground conductors from conduits, cables, and metal raceways must not be connected to ground circuit wires.

If conduit, couplings or fittings having protective coating or non-conducting material, such as enamel are used, such coating must be thoroughly removed from threads of both couplings and conduit and such surfaces or fittings where the conduit or ground clamp is secured, in order to obtain the requisite good connection. Grounded pipes must be clean of rust, scale, etc., at the place of attachment of ground clamp.

GROUND CONNECTION.

(o) The ground connection must be permanent and effective and be made as indicated below but always to water piping system if available.

The protective grounding of electrical circuits and equipment to water piping systems in accordance with these rules is hereby permitted.

For circuits, equipment and arresters at supply stations, connections must be made to all available active, continuous, metallic underground water piping systems between which no appreciable difference of potential normally exists and to one such system if appreciable differences of potential do exist between them. At other places connection must be made to at least one such system if available. Gas piping must be avoided wherever practicable except as permitted in last paragraph of section (q) below.

Where underground metallic piping systems are not available, other methods which will secure the desired permanence and conductance may be permitted.

(p) Protective ground connections for other than electric railway lightning arresters must not be made to railway negative return circuits when other effective means of grounding are available.

(q) Ground connections to metallic piping system must be made on the street side of water meters, but connections may be made immediately inside building walls to secure accessibility for inspection and test. When water meters are located outside buildings or in concrete pits within buildings where piping connections are imbedded in concrete flooring, the ground connection may be made on building side of the meters, if they are suitably shunted.

When the making of a ground to a piping system outside meter or other device would involve a long run, connection for equipment or wire runways may be made to the water piping system at a point near the part to be protected, provided there are no insulating joints in the pipe to prevent a good ground. In such cases care should be taken to electrically connect all parts of the piping system liable to create a hazard and to shunt the pipe system where necessary around meters and similar devices, in order to keep the connections with the underground piping system continuous.

Gas piping systems within buildings must not be used for purposes of this rule, except where water piping systems are not available and then only for grounding of equipment, metal raceways, and similar devices, also excepting that gas piping need not be insulated from otherwise well-grounded electrical fixtures and where the making of another ground connection for a fixture would involve a long run and the fixture is not within reach of plumbing or plumbing fixtures, the gas piping may for small fixtures be utilized as the sole ground connection. Where gas piping is so used it must be bonded to the water piping systems within the building at their points of entrance.

(r) The ground connection to metallic piping systems must be made by means of an approved clamp which is bolted around the pipe after all rust and scale have been removed, or by means of a brass plug tightly screwed into pipe or fitting, or by other equivalent means.

The ground wire must be attached to the clamp or to the plug by means of solder or by an approved solderless connector.

The point of connection must be in plain sight and as readily accessible as possible.

(s) Artificial grounds should be located where practicable below permanent moisture level. Each ground must present not less than four (4) square feet of surface to exterior soil. Areas where ground water level is close to the surface should be used when available.

Where ground plates are used they should be at least No. 16 Stubbs gage copper; when driven pipes are used they should be of galvanized iron and not smaller than one inch internal diameter; and when cast iron plates are used they should be at least one-quarter inch in thickness.

(t) The combined resistance of the ground wire and connections of any grounded circuit, equipment, or lightning arrester must not exceed 3 ohms for water pipe connections nor 25 ohms for artificial grounds where these must be used. Where, because of dry or other high resistance soils it is impracticable to obtain artificial ground resistance as low as 25 ohms, two such grounds 6 feet apart if practicable must be installed, and no requirement will be made as to resistance.

(16) WIRES:

(See also Nos. 17, 18, 20, 26, 27, 44, 47 and 48.) (For construction rules see Nos. 49 to 57.)

(a) Must not be of smaller size than No. 14 B. & S. gage, except as allowed for fixture work and pendant cord.

(b) Conductors of size No. 8 B. & S. gage or over used in connection with solid knobs must be securely tied thereto. If wires are used for tying they must have an insulation of the same type as the conductors they confine.

Knobs or cleats which are arranged to grip the wire, must be fastened by either screws or nails. If nails are used, they must be long enough to penetrate the woodwork not less than one-half the length of the knob and fully the thickness of the cleat, and must be provided with washers which will prevent under reasonable usage, injury to the knobs or cleats.

(c) Must be so spliced or joined as to be both mechanically and electrically secure without solder. The joints must then be soldered unless made with some form of approved splicing device, and covered with an insulation equal to that on the conductors.

Stranded wires (except in flexible cords) must be soldered before being fastened under clamps or binding screws, and whether stranded or solid, when they have a conductivity greater than that of No. 8 B. & S. gage they must be soldered into lugs for all terminal connections, except where an approved solderless terminal connector is used.

(d) Must be separated from contact with walls, floors, timbers or partitions through which they may pass by incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating tubes, such as glass or porcelain, except at outlets where approved flexible tubing is required.

Bushings must be long enough to bush the entire length of the hole in one continuous piece, or else the hole must first be bushed by a continuous waterproof tube. This tube may be a conductor, such as iron pipe, but in that case an insulating bushing must be pushed into each end of it, extending far enough to keep the wire absolutely out of contact with the pipe.

(e) Where not enclosed in approved conduit, raceways or armored cable, and where liable to come in contact with gas, water, or other metallic piping or other conducting material, must be separated therefrom by some continuous and firmly fixed non-conductor creating a permanent separation. Must not come nearer than two (2) inches to any other electric lighting power or signalling wire, not enclosed as above, without being permanently separated therefrom by some continuous and firmly fixed non-conductor. The non-conductor used as a separator must be in addition to the regular insulation on the wires. Where tubes are used, they must be securely fastened at the ends to prevent them from moving along the wire.

(f) Must be so placed in wet places that an air space will be left between conductors and pipes in crossing, and the former must be run in such a way that they cannot come in contact with the pipe accidentally. Wires should be run over, rather than under, pipes upon which moisture is likely to gather or which, by leaking might cause trouble on a circuit.

(g) The installation of electrical conductors in raceways or on insulators, in elevator shafts will not be approved, but conductors may be installed in such shafts if encased in metal conduits or armored cables.

(h) In three-wire (not three-phase) systems, the neutral must be of sufficient capacity to carry the maximum current to which it may be subjected.

(17) UNDERGROUND CONDUCTORS:

(a) Must be protected against moisture and mechanical injury where brought into a building and all combustible material must be kept from the immediate vicinity.

(b) Must not be so arranged as to shunt the current through a building around any junction box.

(c) Where underground service enters building through tubes, the tubes shall be tightly closed at outlets with asphaltum or other non-conductor to prevent gases from entering the building through such channels.

(d) No underground service from a subway to a building and no service from a private generating plant shall supply more than one building, unless the conductors are properly protected by fuses and are carried outside all the buildings but the one served. Conductors in conduit or duct under two inches of concrete under a building, or buried back of two inches of concrete or brick within a wall are considered as lying outside of the building. These requirements do not apply to factory yards and factory buildings under single occupancy or management.

(18) TABLE OF ALLOWABLE CARRYING CAPACITY OF WIRES:

(For Construction Rules see Nos. 49 to 57.)

The following table showing the allowable carrying capacity of copper wires and cables of ninety-eight per cent conductivity must be followed in placing interior conductors.

For insulated aluminum wire the safe carrying capacity is eighty-four per cent of that given in the following tables for copper wire with the same kind of insulation:

B. & S. Gage	Diameter in Mils	Table A		Table B

(19) SWITCHES, CUT-OUTS, CIRCUIT-BREAKERS AND SIMILAR DEVICES:

(a) On constant potential circuits, all service switches and all switches controlling circuits supplying current to motors or heating devices and all fuses, unless otherwise provided (for exceptions as to switches see Nos. 8 (c), 24 (a) and (c), 25 (a) and 43 (c); for exceptions as to cut-outs see No. 23 (a) and (b)), must be so arranged that the fuses will protect and the opening of the switch will disconnect all of the wires, that is, in the two-wire system the two wires, and the three-wire system the three wires, must be protected by the fuses and disconnected by the operation of the switch.

When installed without other automatic over-load protective devices automatic over-load circuit breakers must have the poles and trip coils so arranged as to afford complete protection against overloads and short circuits. In two or three-phase three-wire circuits and two-phase four-wire circuits there must be a trip-coil in each of two phases and in four-wire three-phase circuits there must be a trip-coil in each phase. If a circuit breaker is also used in place of the switch it must be so arranged that no one pole can be opened manually without disconnecting all wires.

The above rules do not apply to grounded return circuits of electric railway systems.

(b) Must not be placed where exposed to mechanical injury or in the immediate vicinity of easily ignitable materials or where exposed to inflammable gases or dust, or flyings or combustible material. Where the occupancy of the building is such that switches, cut-outs, and similar devices cannot be located so as not to be exposed as above, they must be mounted in approved cut-out boxes or cabinets, except oil switches, circuit-breakers and similar devices which have approved casings.

Cabinets and cut-out boxes must be of metal when used with metal conduits; armored cable or metal race-way systems; for exceptions see No. 40 (c) and 41 (e).

(c) Must, when located where exposed to moisture as in basements and similar places, be mounted in approved cut-out boxes or cabinets, and when located in wet places or outside of buildings must be mounted in approved weather-proof cut-out boxes or cabinets.

(d) Time switches, sign flashers and similar appliances must be of approved design and enclosed in approved cabinets, except sign flashers mounted as described in No. 83 (b).

(e) Must have the spacing within cabinets or cut-out boxes between the walls of the cabinet or cut-out box and current carrying parts of devices as specified in No. 70.

CONSTANT-CURRENT SYSTEMS, PRINCIPALLY SERIES ARC- LIGHTING.

Constant current systems will not be allowed inside buildings except by special permission.

(20) Wires:

(See also Nos. 16, 17, 18 and 44. For Construction Rules see Nos. 49 and 50.)

(a) Must have an approved rubber insulating covering.

(b) Must be arranged to enter and leave the building through an approved double-contact service switch, mounted in an incombustible case, kept free from moisture, and easy of access to police or firemen.

Switches must close the main circuit and disconnect the branch wires when turned "off," must be so constructed that they shall be automatic in action, not stopping between points when started, and must prevent an arc between the points under all circumstances.

They must indicate whether the current be "on" or "off."

(c) Must always be in plain sight and never encased except when required by the Bureau of Building Inspection.

(d) Must be supported on glass or porcelain insulators, which separate the wire at least one inch from the surface wired over and must be kept rigidly at least eight inches from each other, except within the structure of lamps, on hanger-boards or in cut-out boxes, or like places where a less distance is necessary.

(c) Must, on side walls, be protected from mechanical injury by a substantial boxing, retaining an air space of one inch around the conductors, closed at the top (the wires passing through bushed holes,) and extending not less than seven feet from the floor. When crossing floor timbers in cellars or in rooms where they might be exposed to injury, wires must be attached by their insulating supports to the under side of a wooden strip not less than one-half inch in thickness. Instead of the running boards, guard strips on each side of and close to the wires will be permitted.

These strips to be not less than seven-eighths of an inch in thickness and at least as high as the insulators.

C. SERIES ARC LAMPS.

(a) Must be carefully isolated from inflammable material.

(b) Must be provided at all times with a glass globe surrounding the arc, and securely fastened upon a closed base. Broken or cracked globes will not be permitted.

(c) Must be provided with a wire netting (having a mesh not exceeding one and one-fourth inches) around the globe and an approved spark arrester, when readily inflammable material is in the vicinity of the lamps, to prevent escape of sparks or carbon or melted copper.

Outside arc lamps must be suspended at least eight feet above sidewalks. Inside arc lamps must be placed out of reach or suitably protected.

Arc lamps when used in places where they are exposed to flyings of easily inflammable material, must have the carbons enclosed completely in a tight globe in such manner as to avoid the necessity for spark arresters.

"Enclosed arc" lamps, having tight inner globes, may be used, and the requirements of Sections (b) and (c) above would not apply.

(d) Where hanger-boards are not used, lamps must be hung from insulating supports other than their conductors.

(e) Lamps when arranged to be raised and lowered either for carboning or other purposes, shall be connected up with stranded conductors, from the last point of support to the lamp, when such conductor is larger than No. 14 B. & S. gage.

(22) INCANDESCENT LAMPS IN SERIES CIRCUITS:

(a) Must have the conductors installed as required in No. 20, and each lamp must be provided with an automatic cut-out.

(b) Must have each lamp suspended from a hanger-board by means of rigid tube.

(c) No electro-magnetic device for switches and no multiple-series or series-multiple system of lighting will be approved.

(d) Must not under any circumstances be attached to gas fixtures.

CONSTANT-POTENTIAL SYSTEMS.

GENERAL RULES—ALL VOLTAGES.

(23) AUTOMATIC 'CUT-OUTS' (FUSES AND CIRCUIT-BREAKERS.)

(See also No. 19. For construction rules see Nos. 66 and 67.)

(a) Must be placed in all underground service wires, either overhead or underground, in the nearest accessible place to the point where they enter the buildings and inside the walls, and arranged to cut off the entire current from the building. Departure from this rule as to location may be authorized only under special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Where service switch, service fuses and meter are combined in an approved self-contained device or compact combination of such devices having no exposed wiring or live parts and no parts unprotected by fuses, except potential coils of the meter, such potential coils may be connected on the supply side of the service fuses.

In installations having private plants, the yard wires running from building to building are not considered as service wires, so that cut-outs would not be required where the wires enter buildings, provided that the next fuse back is small enough to properly protect the wires inside the building in question.

(b) Must be placed at every point where a change is made in the size of wire (unless the cut-out in the larger wire will protect the smaller (see No. 18).

Must not be placed in any permanently grounded wire, except as called for in section (d).

(c) Must be in plain sight, or enclosed in an approved cabinet, and readily accessible. They must not be placed in the canopies or shells of fixtures.

Link fuses may be used only when mounted on approved bases which, except on switch-boards must be mounted in approved cut-out boxes or cabinets. A space of at least two inches must be provided between the open-link fuses and metal or metal lined walls or metal, metal lined, or glass paneled doors of cabinet or cut-out boxes.

Must be so placed that no set of small motors, small heating devices or incandescent lamps, whether grouped on one fixture or on several fixtures or pendants (nor more than 16 medium size or 25 candelabra size sockets or lamp receptacles) requiring more than 660 watts, will be dependent upon one cut-out.

In cases where wiring equal in size and insulation to No. 14 B. & S. gage approved rubber covered wire is carried direct into keyless sockets or receptacles, and where the location of sockets and receptacles is such as to render unlikely the attachment or flexible cords thereto, the circuits may be so arranged that no more than 1,320 watts (or thirty-two sockets or receptacles) will be dependent upon the final cut-out.

Except for signs and outline lighting, receptacles for attachment plugs, sockets and lamp receptacles will be considered as requiring not less than 40 watts each if of the medium size or 25 watts each if of the candelabra size.

All branches or taps from any three-wire system which are directly connected to lamp sockets or other translating devices must be run as two-wire circuits. All wires of all branch or tap circuits which are directly connected to lamp sockets or other translating devices must be protected by proper fuses.

The fuses in the branch cut-outs protecting circuits of 660 watts or less shall not have a rated capacity greater than that given in the following table:

125 volts or less....	10 amperes
125 to 250 volts....	6 amperes

When 1,250 watts are dependent upon one fusible cut-out, as is allowed in theater wiring, outline lighting, signs and large chandeliers, the fuse may be in accordance with the following table:

125 volts or less....	20 amperes
126 to 250 volts....	10 amperes

Fused rosettes may be used only for open work in large mills. Approved link fused rosettes may be used at a voltage of not over 125 and approved enclosed fused rosettes at a voltage of not over 250, the fuse in the rosettes not to exceed 3 amperes and a fuse of over 25 amperes must not be used in the branch circuit.

(e) The rated capacity of fuses must not exceed the allowable carrying capacity of the wire as given in No. 12. Circuit breakers must not be set more than 30 per cent above allowable carrying capacity of the wire, unless a fusible cut-out is also installed on the circuit. Where a rubber-covered conductor carries the current of only one A. C. motor of a type requiring large starting current, it may be protected by a fuse or an automatic circuit breaker without time limit device, rated in accordance with Table B of No. 18. The rated continuous current capacity of a time limit circuit breaker protecting a motor of the above type need not be greater than 110 per cent of the motor current rating, provided the time limit device is capable of preventing the breaker opening during the starting period.

For the protection of wires having safe carrying capacities exceeding the rated capacity of the largest approved enclosed type fuses, approved enclosed fuses arranged in multiple may be used, provided as few fuses as possible are used and the fuses are of equal capacity and provided the cut-out terminals are mounted on a single continuous pair of substantial bus bars. The total capacity of the fuses should not exceed the safe carrying capacity of the wires. This does not apply to motor circuits.

Fixture wire or flexible cord of No. 18 B. & S. gage will be considered as properly protected by 10 ampere fuses.

(f) Each conductor of motor circuits, except on main switchboard or when otherwise subject to competent supervision, must be protected by an approved fuse, whether automatic overload circuit breakers are installed or not. Single phase motors may have one side protected by an approved automatic overload circuit breaker only, if the other side is protected by an approved fuse.

Circuit breakers will be permitted for circuits having a maximum capacity greater than that for which approved enclosed fuses are rated.

(24) SWITCHES:

(See No. 19. For construction of switches see No. 65.)

(a) Must be placed on all service wires either overhead or under ground in the nearest readily accessible place to the point where the wires enter the building.

Service switches must be arranged to cut off the entire current from all circuits and devices including meters except as provided in the following paragraph. Where service fuses and meter are combined in an approved single self-contained unit device having no exposed wiring or live parts and no parts not protected by the fuses, the switch may be so arranged or installed that it will not disconnect the meter from the supply line provided it does disconnect all lines of the supplied house circuits.

Service switches must indicate plainly whether they are open or closed.

Departure from the provisions of the above rule may be authorized only under special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

In installations having private plants the yard wires running from building to building are not considered as service wires, so that switches would not be required in each building if there are other switches conveniently located on the mains or if the generators are near at hand.

With 3-wire direct-current or single-phase systems with grounded neutral, the service switch may be so designed as to permit either outside wire to be opened independently of the other, but the design must be such that the neutral cannot be opened without opening both outside wires.

(b) Must always be placed in dry-accessible places, and be grouped as far as possible. (See No. 19 (c).) Single-throw knife switches must be so placed that gravity will not tend to close them. Double-throw knife switches may be mounted so that the throw will be either vertical or horizontal as preferred, but if the throw be vertical a locking device must be provided, so constructed as to insure the blades remaining in the open position when so set.

When practicable switches must be so wired that blades will be "dead" when switch is open.

(Up to 250 volts and thirty amperes, approved indicating snap switches are to be preferred to knife switches on lighting circuits.)

(c) Single pole switches must never be used as service switches except as permitted in Section (a), nor for the control of outdoor signs or circuits located in damp places, nor placed in the neutral wire of a three-wire system, except in the two-wire branch or tap circuit supply not more than 660 watts.

This does not apply to the grounded circuits of street railway systems.

Three-way switches are considered as single pole switches.

(d) Where flush switches or receptacles are used, whether with conduit stems or not, they must be enclosed in an approved box constructed of iron or steel, in addition to the porcelain enclosure of the switch or receptacle.

At floor outlets, attachment plugs and receptacles must be enclosed in approved floor outlet boxes especially designed for this purpose. Departure from this rule may be authorized only under special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection in cases where attachment plugs and receptacles are not subject to mechanical injury and the presence of moisture is not probable.

Must be supported at outlets when possible by seven-eighths-inch blocks fastened between studs flush with back of lath except when approved fittings or outlet boxes which will give proper support are used. When this cannot be done, base blocks not less than three-fourths inch in thickness securely screwed to the lathing must be provided.

(f) Sub-bases of incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material which will separate the wires at least one-half inch from the surface wired over, must be installed under all snap switches used in exposed knob and cleat work. Sub-bases must also be used in moulding work, but they may be made of hardwood or they may be omitted if the switch is approved for mounting directly on the moulding.

(25) HEATING DEVICES:

(a) Each heater of more than six (6) amperes or 660 watts capacity must be protected by a cut-out. Heaters of six (6) amperes or 660 watts capacity, or less, may be grouped under under the protection of a single set of fuses, provided the rated capacity of the fuses does not exceed ten (10) amperes, or may be connected individually to lighting circuits when the normal load in use on the circuit at any time will not exceed 660 watts. Sub-divided circuits of a heater need not be separately fused.

Each heater of more than six (6) amperes or 660 watts capacity and each group of heaters not exceeding six (6) amperes or 660 watts capacity must be controlled by a switch plainly indicating whether "on" or "off," located within sight of the heater arranged to cut off all current from the heater. Where the capacity of the heater does not exceed fifteen (15) amperes or 1,650 watts, an approved plug connector may be employed in lieu of a switch. Switches controlling sub-divided circuits of a heater are not considered as taking the place of the main switch called for by this paragraph. The single pole switches on the individual units of electric ranges and similar devices are not to be considered as taking the place of the switch herein required.

(b) Flexible conductors for smoothing irons and sad irons and for all devices requiring over 250 watts, must have an approved insulation and covering complying with the requirements of No. 51 (f).

(c) With portable heating devices, approved plug connectors must be used, so arranged that the plug may be pulled out to open the circuit without leaving any live parts so exposed as to render likely accidental contact therewith. The connector may be located at either end of the flexible conductor or inserted in the conductor itself.

(d) Smoothing irons, sad irons and other heating devices that are intended to be applied to combustible articles, must be provided with approved stands, and each such heating device, when attached to plug outlet, or group of devices when attached to plug outlets, to be provided with signal lights or with approved protective device.

(e) Stationary heaters, such as radiators, ranges, plate warmers and similar devices must be so located as to furnish ample protection between the device and surrounding combustible materials.

The metal frame of such stationary heaters and similar devices should be grounded and if grounded must be as provided in No. 15A. When grounding is impracticable, the frame must be permanently and effectively insulated.

(f) Must each be provided with a name-plate giving the maker's name and the normal capacity in volts and amperes, or in volts and watts.

LOW POTENTIAL SYSTEM.

550 Volts or Less.

Any circuit attached to any transforming device, machine, or combination of machines, which develops a difference of potential between any two wires or between any wire, and the ground of not over 550 volts, shall be considered as a low-potential circuit, and as coming under this class. The primary circuit not to exceed a potential of 3,500 volts, unless the primary wires are installed in accordance with the requirements as given in No. 13, or are underground. For 550 volt motor equipment a margin of ten per cent above 550 volt limit will be allowed at the generator or transformer.

GENERAL RULES.

(26) Wires:

(See also Nos. 16, 17, 18, 20 and 27.)
(For Construction Rules see Nos. 49 to 57.)

(a) (After January 1, 1919.) The neutral conductor on all three-wire circuits and one conductor on all two-wire circuits must have an identifying insulating covering, readily distinguishing it from other wires. This wire must be run without transposition throughout the entire installation and properly connected at all fittings to properly identified terminals in order to preserve its continuity.

When one of the circuit wires is to be grounded, the ground connection must be made to this identified wire and as prescribed in No. 15A.

(b) When entering cabinets, cut-out boxes or junction boxes, except where they are in conduit, armored cable or metal raceways, they must be protected by incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating bushings, which fit tightly the holes in the box or cabinet and are well secured in place. The wires must completely fill the holes in the bushings, so as to keep out dust, tape being used to build up the wires if necessary. For concealed knob and tube work, or for open work, in dry places, approved flexible tubing will be accepted in lieu of bushings, providing it extends from the last porcelain support into a wooden cabinet, or is secured to a metal cabinet, cut-out box, junction or switch-box by an approved fitting.

(c) Must not be laid in plaster, cement or similar finish, and must never be fastened with staples.

Must not be fished for any great distance, and only in places where the inspector can satisfy himself that the rules have been complied with.

(d) Twin wires must never be used, except in conduits, or where flexible conductors are necessary.

(e) Must, where exposed to mechanical injury, be suitably protected. When crossing floor timbers in cellars or rooms where they might be exposed to injury wires must be installed in approved conduit or armored cable or be otherwise properly guarded. Where running boards are acceptable they must be not less than one-half inch in thickness and not less than three inches in width; where guard strips are acceptable these must not be less than three-fourths inch in thickness and at least as high as the insulators and must be placed on each side of and close to the wires.

Protection on side walls must extend not less than seven feet from the floor and must consist of substantial boxing retaining an air space of one inch around the conductors, closed at the top (the wires passing through bushed holes) or approved metal conduit or pipe of equivalent strength.

When metal conduit or pipe is used, the insulation of each wire must be reinforced by approved flexible tubing extending from the insulator next below the pipe to the one next above it, unless the conduit is installed according to No. 28 (Sections (e) and (f) excepted, and approved conduit wire is used. The two or more wires of a circuit each with its flexible tubing (when required), if carrying alternating current must, or if direct current may, be placed within the same pipe.

Permission is hereby given to use wooden boxing, in damp places, where metal piping is not sufficiently insulated. However, near belts, pulleys and similar situations, metal piping must be used.

(f) When run in unfinished attics or roof spaces wiring will be considered as concealed when said spaces are inaccessible and may be run knob and tube; and will be considered as exposed to mechanical injury when said spaces are accessible and liable to be used, in which case wiring must not be run on knobs on the upper edge of joists.

When running in close proximity to water tanks and pipes wiring will be considered as exposed to moisture.

SPECIAL RULES.

For Open Work:

In Dry Places:

(g) Must have an approved rubber (Type Letter R for wires smaller than No. 6 B. & S. gage and Type Letters R. D. for wires No. 6 and larger,) slow burning weatherproof of (Type letters S. B. W.) or slow burning insulation (Type Letters S. B.)

(h) Must be rigidly supported or incombustible, non-absorptive insulators, which will separate the wires from each other and from the surface wired over in accordance with the following table:

Voltage	Distance from	Distance between
	Surface	Wires
0 to 300	1/2 inch	2 1/2 inch
301 to 550	1 inch	4 inches

For the purpose of rigid supports above required wiring along flat surfaces shall be supported at least every four and one-half feet. Wherever wires are liable to be disturbed the distance between supports must be shortened. Wherever mains are not liable to be disturbed they may be supported from timber to timber without breaking around if separated about 6 inches from each other.

Must not be "dead-ended" at a rosette, socket or receptacle unless the last support is within twelve inches of the same.

IN DAMP PLACES, OR BUILDINGS ESPECIALLY SUBJECT TO MOIS-TURE OR TO ACID OR OTHER FUMES LIABLE TO IN-JURE THE WIRES OR THEIR INSULATION.

(i) Must have approved insulating covering.

For protection against water, rubber insulation must be used. For protection against corrosive vapors, either weatherproof or rubber insulation must be used.

(j) Must be rigidly supported on incombustible, non-absorptive insulators, which separate the wire at least one inch from the surface wired over, and must be kept apart at least two and one-half inches for voltages up to 300, and four inches for higher voltages.

For the purpose of rigid supports above required wiring along flat surface shall be supported at least every four and one-half feet. Wherever wiring is liable to be disturbed the distance between supports must be shortened.

Mains of not less than No. 8 B. & S. gage in buildings of slow-burning or mill construction, where not liable to become disturbed may be supported from timber to timber without breaking around if separated about 6 inches from each other.

For Surface Wiring Raceways:

(Wooden and Metal) See No. 29. For Construction of Raceways see No. 60.)

(k) Must have an approved rubber insulating covering (Type Letter R for wires smaller than No. 6 B. & S. gage, and Type Letters R. D. for wires No. 6 and larger), and must be in continuous lengths from outlet to outlet, or from fitting to fitting, no joints or taps to be made in the raceway. Where branch taps are necessary in raceway work approved fittings for this purpose must be used.

(l) Must never be placed in either metal or wooden raceways in damp locations; must never be placed in either metal or wooden raceways in concealed location or where the difference of potential between any two wires in the same system is over 300 volts. When the electrical construction is being carried out in metal raceways permission will be given to extend these race ways through walls and partitions if the raceways are in continuous lengths where passing through the walls and partitions not more than four No. 14 B. & S. gage rubber covered wires, and no single circuit of more than 1,320 watts shall be used in metal raceways.

(m) Must for alternating current systems, if in metal raceways, have the two or more wires of a circuit installed in the same raceway.

FOR CONDUIT WORK:

(n) Must have an approved rubber insulated covering, and within the conduit tubing must be without splices or taps. Must be double braided (Type Letters R. D.) for twin, twisted pair or multiple conductor cables and for all single conductors of No. 6 B. & S. gage and larger.

Slow burning insulation may, however, be used in permanently dry locations where excessive temperatures are present, provided special permission in writing be given in advance by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

(o) Must not be drawn in until all mechanical work on the building has been, as far as possible, completed.

Conductors in vertical conduit risers must be supported within the conduit system in accordance with the following table:

No. 14 to 0 inclusive every 100 feet.

No. 00 to 0000 inclusive every 80 feet.

Above 0000 to 350,000 C. M. inclusive every 60 feet.

Above 350,000 to 500,000 C. M. inclusive every 50 feet.

Above 500,000 C. M. to 750,000 C. M. inclusive every 40 feet.

Above 750,000 C. M. every 35 feet.

Any one of the following methods or their equivalent may be used for supporting cables:

I. Approved clamping devices constructed of or employing insulating wedges inserted in the ends of conduits.

II. Junction boxes may be inserted in the conduit system at the required intervals, in which insulating supports of approved type must be installed and secured in a satisfactory manner so as to withstand the weight of the conductors attached thereto, the boxes to be provided with proper covers.

III. Cables may be supported in junction boxes on two or more insulating supports so placed that the conductors will be deflected at an angle of not less than 90 degrees, and carried a distance of not less than twice the diameter of the cable from its vertical position. Cables so suspended may be additionally secured to these insulators by tie wires.

Conductors No. 2 B. & S. gage, or larger, must not be deflected where they enter or leave the cabinet except that conductors of No. 2 B. & S. gage to 250,000 C. M. inclusive, if brought into the cabinet, cut-out box, junction or pull box opposite to the panel lugs in which they terminate may be deflected sufficiently to permit their attachment to these lugs provided the gutter of the cabinet is not less than 4 inches in width.

(p) Must for alternating systems, have the two or more wires of a circuit drawn in the same conduit.

Except in the case of stage pocket and border circuits the same conduit must not contain more than four two-wire or three three-wire circuits of the same system, except by special permission, and must never contain circuits of different systems.

FOR CONCEALED "KNOB AND TUBE" WORK:

(q) Must have an approved rubber insulating covering. (Type Letter R for wires smaller than No. 6 B. & S. gage, and Type Letters R. D. for wires No. 6 and larger.)

(r) Must be rigidly supported on incombustible, non-absorptive insulators which separate the wire at least one inch from the surface wired over. Should preferably be run singly on separate timbers, or studding, and must be kept at least five inches apart.

Must be separated from contact with the walls, floor timbers and partitions through which they may pass by incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating tubes, such as glass or porcelain. Wires passing through cross timbers in plastered partitions must be protected by an additional tube extending at least four inches above the timber.

For the purpose of rigid supports above required, wiring along flat surfaces shall be supported at least every four and one-half feet. Wherever wiring is liable to be disturbed the distance between supports must be shortened.

At distributing centers, meters, outlets, switches or other places where space is limited, and the five-inch separation cannot be maintained, each wire must be separately encased in a continuous length of approved flexible or other tubing.

(s) When in a concealed knob and tube system, it is impracticable to place the whole of a circuit on incombustible supports of glass or porcelain, that portion of the circuit which cannot be so supported must be installed with approved metal conduit or approved armored cable, except that if the difference of potential between the wires is not over 300 volts and if the wires are not exposed to moisture, they may be fished if separately encased in approved flexible tubing, extending in continuous lengths from porcelain support to porcelain support, from porcelain support to outlet, or from outlet to outlet.

(t) When using either conduit or armored cable in mixed concealed knob and tube work the requirements for conduit work or armored cable work must be complied with as the case may be, except that approved fittings having a separate bushed hole for each conductor may be used for terminating the conduit or armored cable where wires pass from the conduit or cable without splice, joint or tap.

(u) Must at all outlets, except where conduit is used, be protected by approved flexible tubing, extending in continuous lengths from the last porcelain support to at least one inch beyond the outlet. In the case of combination gas and electric outlets, the tubes on the wires must extend at least flush with the outlet ends of gas caps, and if box or plate is used, gas pipes must be securely fastened into the outlet box or plate to secure good electrical connection.

When the surface at any outlet is broken, it must be repaired so as to leave no holes or open spaces at such outlet.

For concealed work in walls and ceilings composed of plaster on wooden joist or stud construction, outlet boxes or plates if used, and also cabinets or switch boxes must be so installed that the front edge will not be more than one-fourth inch back of the finished surface of the plaster, and if this surface is broken or incomplete it shall be repaired so that it will not show any gaps or open spaces around the edges of the outlet box or plate if used, or of the cabinet. On wooden walls or ceilings, outlet boxes or plates, and cabinets or switch boxes must be so installed that the front edge will either be flush with the finished surface or project therefrom.

(27) ARMORED CABLES:

(See also No. 26 s. For construction of Armored Cables see No. 64.)

(a) Must be continuous from outlet to outlet or to junction boxes or cabinets, and the armor of the cable must properly enter and be secured to all fittings, and the entire system must be mechanically secured in position.

In case of service connections and main runs, this involves running such armored cable continuously into a main cut-out cabinet or gutter surrounding the panel board, as the case may be.

(b) Must be equipped at every outlet with an approved outlet box or plate, as required in conduit work.

Outlet plates must not be used where it is practicable to install outlet boxes.

For concealed work in walls and ceilings composed of plaster on wooden joist or stud construction, outlet boxes or plates and also cut-out cabinets must be so installed that the front edge will not be more than one-fourth inch back of the finished surface of the plaster, and if this surface is broken or incomplete it shall be repaired so that it will not show any gaps or open spaces around the edges of the outlet box or plate or of the cut-out cabinet. On wooden walls or ceilings, outlet boxes or plates and cut-out cabinets must be so installed that the front edge will either be flush with the finished surface or project therefrom. This will not apply to concealed work in walls or ceilings composed of concrete, tile or other incombustible material.

In buildings already constructed where the conditions are such that neither outlet box nor plate can be installed, these appliances may be omitted by special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, provided the armored cable is firmly and rigidly secured in place.

At exposed ends of armored cable (except fixture outlets) where the wires pass from the armored cable system without splice, joint or tap an approved fitting having a separate bushed hole for each conductor must be used.

(c) Must have the metal armor of cables grounded as required in No. 15A.

(d) When installed in so-called fire-proof buildings in course of construction or afterwards if exposed to moisture, or where it is exposed to the weather, or in damp places, such as breweries, stables, and similar occupancies, the cable must have a lead covering, placed between the outer braid of the conductors and the steel armor.

The lead covering is not to be required when the cable is run against brick walls or laid in ordinary plaster walls unless same are continuously damp.

(e) Where entering junction boxes, and at all other outlets, and similar devices, must be provided with approved terminal fittings which will protect the insulation of the conductors from abrasion, unless such protection is afforded by the junction or outlet boxes themselves.

(f) Junction boxes must always be installed in such a manner as to be accessible except as provided in No. 26 (t).

(g) For alternating current systems must have the two or more conductors of the circuit enclosed in one metal armor.

(h) All bends must be so made that the armor of the cable will not be injured. The radius of the curve of the inner edge of any bend not to be less than $1\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

(28) INTERIOR CONDUITS:

(See also No. 26 n to p. For construction of Conduit see No. 58, and for construction of outlet, Junction and Flush Switch Boxes see No. 59.)

(a) No conduit smaller than one-half inch electrical trade size shall be used.

(b) Must be continuous from outlet to outlet or to junction boxes or cabinets, and the conduit must properly enter, and be secured to all fittings and the entire system must be mechanically secured in position.

For this purpose each conduit for service connections and main runs must be run continuously into a main cut-out, cabinet or gutter surrounding the panel board as the case may be.

Departure from the foregoing may be authorized in case of underground services by special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

(c) Must be first installed as a complete conduit system, without the conductors.

(d) Must be equipped at every outlet with an approved outlet box or plate. At exposed ends of conduit (but not at fixture outlets) where wires pass from the conduit system without splice, joint or tap, an approved fitting having separately bushed holes for each conductor must be used. Departure from this rule may be authorized by special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Outlet plates must not be used where it is practicable to install outlet boxes.

For concealed work in walls and ceilings composed of plaster on wooden joist or stud construction, outlet boxes or plates and also cut-out cabinets must be so installed that the front edge will be not more than one-fourth inch back of the finished surface of the plaster, and if this surface is broken or incomplete it shall be repaired so that it will not show any gaps or open spaces around the edges of the outlet box or plate or of the cut-out cabinet. On wooden walls or ceilings, outlet boxes or plates and cut-out cabinets must be so installed that the front edge will either be flush with the finished surface or project therefrom. This will not apply to concealed work in walls or ceilings composed of concrete, tile or other incombustible material.

In buildings already constructed where the conditions are such that neither outlet box nor plate can be installed, these appliances may be omitted, providing the conduit ends are bushed and secured.

(e) Metal conduits where they enter junction boxes, and at all other outlets, and similar devices, must be provided with approved bushings or fastening plates fitted so as to protect wire from abrasion, except when such protection is obtained by the use of approved nipples, properly fitted in boxes or devices.

(f) Must have the metal of the conduit grounded as required in No. 15A.

(g) Junction boxes must always be installed in such a manner as to be accessible except as provided for in No. 26 t. Such boxes are considered to be accessible when installed in an attic that has sufficient head-room, but which is reached only by a portable ladder and permanent hatch.

(h) All elbows or bends must be so made that the conduit will not be injured. The radius of the curve of the inner edge of any elbow not to be less than three and one-half inches. Must have not more than the equivalent of four quarter bends from outlet to outlet, the bends at the outlets not being counted.

(29) METAL RACEWAYS FOR SURFACE WIRING:

(See also No. 26 k to m. For construction of Raceways see No. 60.)

(a) Metal raceways may be used for exposed work only.

(b) Must be continuous from outlet to outlet, to junction boxes, or approved fittings designed especially for use with metal raceways, and must at all outlets be provided with approved terminal fittings which will protect the insulation of conductors from abrasion, unless such protection is afforded by the construction of the boxes or fittings.

(c) Such raceway where passing through a floor must be carried through an iron pipe extending from the ceiling below to a point five feet above the floor, which will serve as an additional mechanical protection and exclude the presence of moisture often prevalent in such locations.

Where the mechanical strength of the raceway itself is adequate, the foregoing may be modified to require the protecting piping from the ceiling below to a point at least three inches above the flooring.

Where such raceways pass through a partition the iron pipe required for passing through floors may be omitted and the raceway passed directly through, providing the partition is dry and the raceway is in a continuous length with no joint or coupling within the partition.

(d) The heads of screws or bolts placed within the raceway must be flush with the metal.

(e) Must have the metal raceways grounded as required in No. 15A.

(f) Must be installed so that for alternating system the two or more wires of a circuit will be in the same metal raceway.

(30) FIXTURES:

(For construction of fixture wires see No. 52. For construction of fixtures see No. 77. For gas-filled lamps see No. 35.)

(a) Must, except in the cases mentioned in items 1-4 inclusive below, be insulated from their supports by approved insulating joints placed as close as possible to the ceiling or walls.

Where insulating joints are required, fixture canopies of metal must be thoroughly and permanently insulated from metal walls or ceilings or from plaster walls or ceilings on metal lathing and from outlet boxes. Canopy insulators must be securely fastened in place so as to separate the canopies thoroughly and permanently from the surface and outlet boxes from which they are designed to be insulated.

Gas pipes must be protected above the insulating joints or blind hickies by approved insulating tubing, and where outlet tubes are used, they must be of sufficient length to extend below the insulating joint and must be so secured that they will not be pushed back when the canopy is put in place.

Insulating joints and canopy insulators may be omitted in the following cases:

1. Straight electric fixtures connected to knob and tube, wooden raceways or open work, except on metal ceilings or on plaster walls or ceilings containing metal lathing.

2. Straight electric fixtures in which all wires have an approved rubber insulation not less than three sixty-fourths inch in thickness and which are metallically connected in a permanent and effective manner to metal conduit, armored cable or metal raceway systems or to gas piping, provided such gas piping is grounded in the manner prescribed for conduit in No. 15A.

All wires excepting collector wires and those in metal conduit or approved flexible cable must be supported by knobs or cleats which separate them at least one inch from the surface wired over, but in dry places where space is limited and the distance between wires as required by No. 26 (h) cannot be obtained, each wire must be separately encased in approved flexible tubing securely fastened in place.

Collector wires must be supported by approved insulators so mounted that even with the extreme movements permitted the wires will be separated at all times at least 1½ inches from the surface wired over. Collector wires must be held at the ends by approved strain insulators.

3. Main collector wires carried along the runways must be rigidly and securely attached to their insulating supports approximately every 20 feet, and separated at least six inches when run in a horizontal plane; if not run in a horizontal plane, they must be separated at least eight inches. If spans exceeding 20 feet are necessary the distance between wires must be increased proportionately but in no case shall the span exceed 40 feet.

4. Where bridge collector wires are over 80 feet long, insulating supports on which the wires may loosely lie must be provided at least every 50 feet.

Bridge collector wires must be kept at least 2½ inches apart, but a greater spacing shall be used whenever it may be obtained.

CLASS D.

FITTINGS AND MATERIALS.

ALL SYSTEMS AND VOLTAGES.

For the purposes of this ordinance the descriptions contained in this section of the general characteristics of fittings and materials of the types commonly employed in electrical equipments for the installation of which regulations are given in Classes A, B, C, E, and F shall be taken as typical of and as a guide to the proper classification and identification of types, sizes, ratings and uses of fittings and materials, together with such regulations as are applicable to all electrical devices.

The requirements for details of construction and specifications for tests for which provisions are made in this section shall be taken as typical of and as a guide to the proper basis for standard practice in the installation of fittings and materials.

GENERAL:

Electrical fittings and materials for use under the installation regulations of this ordinance are to be taken with reference to the following five considerations which also determine the classifications by types, sizes, voltages, current-carrying capacities and specific uses:

(a) Suitability for installations and use in conformity with the regulations of this ordinance.

(b) Mechanical strength and durability, including, for appliances designed to enclose and protect other equipment, the adequacy of the protection thus provided.

(c) Electrical insulation.

(d) Heating effects under normal conditions of use and also under abnormal conditions liable to arise in service.

(e) Arcing effects.

BASES:

Bases on which live parts are mounted must be made of approved incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material.

The design of the base must be such that, considering the material used, the base will withstand the most severe conditions liable to be met in practice.

Bases with an area of over 25 square inches must have at least four supporting screws. Holes for supporting screws must be so located or countersunk that there will be at least one-half inch space, measured over the surface between the screw-head or washer and the nearest live metal part, and in all cases where between parts of opposite polarity must be countersunk.

Holes for supporting screws in link fuse cut-out bases must be kept outside the area included by the outside edges of the fuse terminals.

Nuts or screw-heads on the under side of the base must be countersunk and sealed with a waterproof compound.

TERMINAL PARTS:

Terminal parts by which wire connections are made must insure thoroughly good connections even under hard usage.

For currents above thirty amperes, lugs into which the connecting wires may be soldered or approved solderless connectors must be used.

For currents of 30 amperes and less the parts to which wiring connections are made must securely grip the conductors. Heavy clamps or screws with terminal plates having upturned lugs or approved solderless connectors may be used.

The set screw form of contact will not be approved.

Clamps or lugs are not required when leads are provided as a part of a device.

MARKINGS:

The maker's name, trade-mark or other identification symbol must be placed on fittings and materials.

Markings giving voltage, current, wattage or other appropriate ratings are prescribed for many types of devices and must in general conform to the classifications given in this section.

(63) FLEXIBLE TUBING:

The tubing must have a smooth interior, and its outer surface must be treated with a moisture repellant and must not convey fire when ignited and held in a vertical position. The tubing must be so designed that the interior lining, if any, is not removable in lengths of over three (3) feet and be sufficiently tough and tenacious to withstand any abrasion likely to be met with in practice.

(64) Left blank for future use.

(65) SWITCHES:

(For installation rules see Nos. 8 (c), 19, 20 (b) and 24).

(A knife switch is a switch having electrical connecting parts in the form of hinged or pivoted bars or blades and designed for manual operation).

Under this term are included single or multiple pole switches either with or without fuse terminals, switches having individual bases designed for either front or rear wiring connections; also switch parts without separate bases intended for mounting on switchboards and panel boards.

(a) CLASSIFICATION AND MARKING:

Must be plainly marked where it can be read when the switch is installed, with the current and the voltage for which the switch is designed as follows:

(b) MOUNTING:

Pieces carrying, or used to hold the break and hinge jaws, must be secured to the base or mounting surface in such a manner as to prevent possible turning.

The cross bar must be secured to each blade in such a manner as to prevent turning and twisting.

(c) SPACINGS:

The spacings given below are standard and are to be considered as the minimum allowable, except as otherwise provided for.

The measurements given under Tables 1 and 2 are to be taken within the area of the switch base bounded by the contact parts of the switch mechanism (break and hinge jaws). The measurements outside of the zone of the switch mechanism shall not be less than given under Table 3.

The dimensions given for break distances do not apply to quick break attachments on switch mechanisms.

(d) FUSE TERMINALS:

When fuse terminals are provided the spacing for such terminals required by Rules 67a and 68g must be provided.

Switches rated above 400 amperes at 600 volts and 600 amperes at 250 volts, and therefore exceeding the capacities of standard sizes of cartridge enclosed fuses, may be arranged for fuses in multiple, provided as few fuses as possible are used, that the fuses are of equal capacity and provided that the multiple terminals for each pole are mounted in common.

Switches marked with the combined rating, 250 volts, D. C. or 500 volts, A. C. must not be provided with fuse terminals. (See Markings).

Switches having fuse terminals and intended for use in the ultimate or branch circuits, indirect connection with lamp or other translating devices, must have fuse terminals in each pole.

(e) AUXILIARY CONTACTS:

Auxiliary contacts of a renewable or quick-break type or the equivalent are recommended for D. C. switches rated at over 250 volts and must be provided on all 600-volt switches designed for use in breaking currents from 200 to 1,000 amperes, inclusive.

(f) BARRIERS:

Barriers designed to be placed between the poles and switches and not located within the influence of the arc must be of non-absorptive insulating material. Barriers placed between the poles of switches and located within the influence of the arc formed by the opening of the switch must be of an incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material.

Barriers, designed to be placed between poles of switches as hinge jaws must be of such a size and so located as to provide a separation between contact parts measured in the shortest insulating surface path over the barrier equal to that required for switches without barriers, and to provide a separation between other current-carrying parts, as given under "Spacing."

Barriers placed between the poles of switches at the break jaws, and, therefore, located within the influence of the arc formed by the opening of the switch, must be of such size and so located as to provide a separation between contact parts measured in the shortest path through air over the barrier equal to that required for switches with barriers.

(g) MULTIPLE POLE SWITCHES:

Switches designed for double throw and having three or more poles, must not have front-connected terminals for the hinge contacts of the inner poles, unless standard switch spacings between adjacent live metal parts of opposite polarity are secured either by increased spacing between poles or by the use of barriers as provided for in section (f).

(66) CIRCUIT BREAKERS:

Automatic overload circuit breakers must be substantial in construction, and must have ample metal for stiffness. The contact parts shall be arranged so that thoroughly good bearings are obtained. All breakers must be provided with easily accessible means of tripping them by hand without injury to the operator.

(67) CUT-OUT BASES:

(For installation rules, see Nos. 8-c, 19, 23, 25-a, 33-a and 42).

These requirements do not apply to rosettes, attachment plugs and protective devices for signaling systems.

LINK FUSE CUT-OUT BASES:

(a) SPACINGS:

Spacings must be at least as great as those given in the following table, which applies only to plain, open fuse blocks, mounted on slate or marble bases. If the copper fuse-tips overhang the edges of the fuse-block terminals, the spacings must be measured between the nearest edges of the tips.

Ampere Capacity	Minimum Separation of Nearest Metal Parts Opposite Polarity.	Minimum Break Distance
Not Over 125 Volts.
0-10	$\frac{3}{4}$ inch	$\frac{3}{4}$ inch
11-100	1 inch	$\frac{1}{2}$ inch
101-300	1 inch	1 inch
301-1000	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inch	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inch
Not Over 250 Volts.
0-10	1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inch
11-100	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inch	1 $\frac{1}{4}$ inch
101-300	2 inch	1 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch
301-1000	2 $\frac{1}{2}$ inch	2 inch

A space must be maintained between fuse terminals of the same polarity of at least one-half inch for voltages up to 125 and of at least three-quarter inch for voltages from 126 to 250. This is the minimum distance allowable and greater separation should be provided when practicable.

For 3-wire systems cut-outs must have the break distance required for circuits of the potential of the outside wires, except that in 125-250 volt system with grounded neutral the cut-outs in 2-wire, 125-volt branch circuits may have the same spacings as specified for not over 125 volts.

ENCLOSED FUSE CUT-OUT BASES—PLUG AND CARTRIDGE TYPE:

(b) FUSE TERMINALS:

Except for sealable service and meter cut-outs fuse terminals must be of either the Edison plug; spring clip or knife blade type, to take the corresponding standard enclosed fuses. They must be secured to the base by 2 screws or the equivalent, so as to prevent them from turning, and must be so made as to secure a thoroughly good contact with the fuse. End stops must be provided to insure the proper location of the cartridge fuse in the cut-out base.

(c) CLASSIFICATION:

Must be classified as regards both current and voltage as given in the following table, and must be so designed that the bases of one class cannot be used with fuses of another class rated for a higher current or voltage.

STANDARD PLUG OR CARTRIDGE CUT-OUTS.

Not over 250 volts.	Not over 600 volts.

(68) FUSES:

(For installation rules, see Nos. 8-c, 19, 23, 25-a and 33-a.)

LINK FUSES.

(a) Contact Tips:

Contact surfaces or tips must be of copper or aluminum, having perfect electrical connections with the fusible part of the strip.

(b) Rating:

Link fuses must be stamped with 80 per cent of the maximum current which they can carry indefinitely, thus allowing about 25 per cent overload before the fuse melts.

Enclosed Fuses—Plug and Cartridge Type:

These requirements do not apply to fuses for rosettes, attachment plugs and protective devices for signaling systems.

(c) Construction:

The fuse casing must be sufficiently tight so that lint and dust cannot collect around the fusible link and become ignited when the fuse is blown.

The fusible wire must be attached to the terminals in such a way as to secure a thoroughly good connection.

Non-refillable fuses must be discarded when blown. Refillable cases must be refilled with a proper capacity fuse.

(d) Classification:

Must be classified to correspond with the different classes of cutouts, and must be so designed that it will be impossible to put any fuse of a given class into a cut-out which is designed for a current or voltage lower than that of the class to which the fuse belongs.

(e) Marking:

The tube or ferrules of ferrule contact fuses and the tubes or caps of knife-blade fuses shall be marked with the labeled capacity.

In addition to the above markings each fuse must be provided with a paper label—green for 250 volt fuses and red for 600 volt fuses.

The label must bear the following: The name or trade-mark of the manufacturer and the voltage for which the fuse is designed.

(f) Terminals:

The fuse terminals must be sufficiently heavy to insure mechanical strength and rigidity. The styles of terminals, except for use in sealable service and meter cut-outs, must be as follows:

Not over 250 volts.

- A. Cartridge fuse (ferrule contact).
- B. Approved plugs or cartridge fuses in properly designed casings for Edison plug cut-outs not exceeding 125 volts, but including any circuit of a three-wire 125-250-volt system with grounded neutral.

they apply.

In the relative arrangement of fuses and switches, the fuses may be placed between the bus-bars and the switches, or between the switches and the circuits except in the case of service switches, when No. 23 (a) must be complied with. When the branch switches are between the fuses and bus-bars, the connections must be so arranged that the blades will be dead when the switches are open.

When there are exposed live metal parts on the back of board, a space of at least one-half inch must be provided between such live metal parts and the cabinet in which the board is mounted

(b) SPACING:

The following minimum distance between bare live metal parts (bus-bars, and similar appliances) must be maintained.

Between parts of opposite polarity except at switches and link fuses.	Between parts of same polarity.
When mounted on the same surface.	When held in air.
Not over 125 volts $\frac{3}{4}$ in.	$\frac{1}{2}$ in.
Not over 250 volts $1\frac{1}{4}$ in.	$\frac{3}{4}$ in.
Not over 600 volts 2 in.	$1\frac{1}{4}$ in.

At switches or enclosed fuses, parts of the same polarity may be placed as close together as convenience in handling will allow.

The spacings given in the first column apply to the branch conductors where enclosed fuses are used. Where link fuses or knife switches are used, the spacings must be at least as great as those required by Nos. 65 and 67.

The spacings given in the second column apply to the distance between the raised main bars and between these bars and the branch bars over which they pass.

The spacings given in the third column are to prevent the melting of a link fuse by the blowing of an adjacent fuse of the same polarity.

(70) CABINETS AND CUT-OUT BOXES:

(For Cut-Outs, Switches, Circuit Breakers, Feeder Circuit Branch Panel Boards, and similar devices.

For installation rules, see Nos. 19 b, c and 23-c.)

(a) Cabinets are designed either for surface or for flush mounting and are provided with frames, mats or trims, in which swinging doors are hung.

Cut-out boxes are designed for surface mounting and have swinging doors or covers secured directly to and telescoping with the walls of the box proper.

Cabinets or cut-out boxes intended for installation out-of-doors must be of weatherproof type.

(b) Cabinets and cut-out boxes, when used to enclose devices or apparatus connected within the cabinet or cut-out box to the wires of more than four circuits, not including the supply circuit or a continuation thereof, must have back wiring spaces or one or more side wiring spaces, side gutters or wiring compartments unless the wires leave the cabinet or cut-out box directly opposite their terminal connections.

(c) Design and construction of all cabinets and cut-out boxes must be such as to insure ample strength and rigidity.

(d) The spacing within cabinets and cut-out boxes must be sufficient to provide ample room for the distribution of wires and cables placed in them, and for a separation between metal parts or cabinets or cut-out boxes and current carrying parts of devices and apparatus mounted within them as follows:

1. There must be an air space of at least 1-16 inch, except at points of support, between the base of the device and the wall of any metal cabinet or cut-out box on which the device is mounted.

2. There must be an air space of at least one inch between any enclosed fuse or current-carrying part and the door unless the door is lined with an approved insulating material or is of a thickness at least that of No. 12 U. S. gage when the air space must not be less than one-half inch.

3. There must be a space of at least two inches between open link fuses and metal lined walls or metal, metal lined or glass paneled doors.

4. Except as noted above there must be an air space of at least one-half inch between the walls, back, gutter partition, if of metal, or door of any cabinet or cut-out box and the nearest exposed current-carrying part of devices mounted within the cabinet where the potentials do not exceed 250 volts. This spacing must be increased to at least one inch where the potentials exceed 250 volts.

5. Cabinets and cut-out boxes must be deep enough to allow the doors to be closed when 30 ampere branch circuit panelboard switches having spool or composition handles or when switches of combination cut-outs are in any position, and when other single throw switches are thrown open as far as their construction and installation will permit.

Cabinets having one or more side wiring spaces, side gutters or side wiring compartments must be furnished with covers, barriers or partitions extending around or from the side or sides of all bases or groups of bases of the switches, cut-outs, circuit breakers or feeder, and circuit branch panelboards within the cabinet and providing a close fit with the door, frame or sides of the cabinet so as to enclose these spaces, gutters or compartments and the wires stowed within them. At sides where wires or cables are led from the cabinet at points directly opposite their terminal connections to devices or apparatus within the cabinet, and other wires or cables are not placed, these covers, barriers or partitions may be omitted.

When cabinets have back wiring spaces which are not entirely enclosed, covers must be furnished to provide equivalent enclosure.

(e) Cabinets made of wood or composition material, whether for flush or surface mounting, must be rigid and substantial. Doors must fit closely. The detailed specifications for sheet metal cabinets must be followed so far as they apply.

(f) Wood, when used for the construction of cabinets must be well seasoned, at least three-fourths inch in thickness, and shall be thoroughly filled and painted. Cabinets made of wood must be completely lined with incombustible material firmly secured in place. Linings of slate, marble or approved composition must be at least one-quarter inch in thickness. Sheet metal, if used as lining, must be at least No. 16 U. S. sheet metal gage. One-eighth inch rigid asbestos board may be used for linings when firmly secured in place.

(g) Cabinets built of composition material must be made up as is specified for wooden cabinets and must be submitted to the Bureau of Building Inspection for approval before being used.

(h) Inside dimensions of wooden and composition cabinets must provide the spacings called for in Section (d) Paragraphs 1-5 inclusive of this Rule. Barriers for gutters and wiring compartments must be provided when and as specified in Section (d), Paragraph 6.

(71) ROSETTES:

(For installation rules see 23-d.)

(a) BASES:

Bases for the knob and cleat type must have at least two holes for supporting screws; must be high enough to keep the wires and terminals at least one-half inch from the surface to which the rosette is attached, and must have a porcelain lug under each terminal to prevent the rosette from being placed over projections which would reduce the separation to less than one-half inch.

Bases for the moulding and conduit box types must be high enough to keep the wires and terminal at least three-eighths inch from the surface wired over.

(b) RATING:

Fuseless rosettes may be rated 3 amperes, 250 volts; fused rosettes with link fuses, not over 2 amperes, 125 volts.

(c) FUSES:

Fused rosettes must have a fuse in each pole.

(72) SOCKETS AND LAMP RE- CEPTACLES:

(For installation rules see No. 31.)

(a) CLASSIFICATION:

Lamp holding devices to be classed according to diameters of lamp bases, as Candelabra, Medium and Mogul Base, to be known respectively as 1-2 inch, 1 inch and 1 1-2 inch nominal sizes, with ratings as specified in the following table:

RATINGS:

Class.	Dia.	Wts.	Key		Wts.	Vlts.
			Max.Amp.	Max.Amp.
			at any	at any Voltage
Candelabra	1/2"	75 125	3/4	75 125	1
Medium	1"	250 250 2 1/2	660	250	6
	(a)	660 250	6	660	600
Mogul	1 1/2"			1500	250
	(b)			1500	600

(a) This rating may be given only to sockets having a switch mechanism which produces both a quick "make" and a quick "break" action.

Miniature sockets and receptacles having screw shells smaller than the candelabra size may be used for Decorative Lighting Systems, Christmas Tree Lighting Outfits, and similar purposes. See No. 37.

(b) LINING:

The inside of metal shells must be lined with insulating material, which must absolutely prevent the shell from becoming a part of the circuit, even though the wires inside the sockets should become loosened or detached from their position under the terminal screws.

The lining must not extend beyond the metal shell more than one-eighth of an inch, but must prevent any current-carrying part of the lamp base from being exposed when a lamp is in the socket.

The cap must also be lined.

(c) ASSEMBLY:

The socket as a whole must be so put together that parts will not rattle loose or fall apart under the most severe conditions they are likely to meet with in practice. The base of the socket must be secured or held in the shell in such a manner as to prevent turning or displacement relative to the shell.

(d) LEAD WIRES:

Lead wires furnished as a part of sockets and intended to be exposed after installation must be of approved stranded, rubber-covered wire, not less than No. 14 B. & S. gage, or (No. 18 B. & S. gage for candelabra sockets), and be sealed in place.

(73) Left blank for future use.

(74) Left blank for future use.

(75) Left blank for future use.

(76) INSULATING JOINTS:

(a) Must be made of approved materials both for metal and other parts including the finishing materials for exterior and interior surfaces.

(b) Must have a substantial exterior metal casing insulated from both screw connections. This does not apply to studs or bolts.

(77) FIXTURES:

(For installation rules see Nos. 30 and 35. For construction of fixture wires see No. 52.)

(a) MECHANICAL CONSTRUCTION:

Fixtures must be of metal or wood. Other materials may be used if approved by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection for the purpose intended. Materials other than metal must be reinforced by metal or the fixtures otherwise constructed to secure requisite mechanical strength.

In all fixtures not made entirely of metal, wire-ways must be metal lined unless approved armored conductors with suitable fittings are used. An exception is made in the case of wire-ways in glass, marble or similar non-absorptive incombustible insulating materials.

With screw joints of arms and stems there must be not less than five threads all engaging at fixture supports, fixture bodies and similar devices.

All methods of fastening arms, sockets and receptacles or making joints between metal parts by threading, soldering, brazing or otherwise, must be such as to secure in every case ample strength and reliability and to prevent turning.

All burrs and fins in wire-ways must be removed and all sharp edges at points where wires emerge from arms, stems, chains, and similar devices, must, when practicable, be removed or rounded, but in every case it must be possible to pull in and also to withdraw the wires without injuring them.

Where supply wires enter casings of fixture stems in either straight electric or combination gas and electric fixtures, there must be suitable fittings having smooth, rounded edges to prevent injury to the wire coverings and to prevent the wires from coming into contact with the edges of the ends of casings.

Fixtures for installation outdoors or where exposed to moisture must be so constructed that water cannot enter the wire-ways, sockets or other electrical parts.

(b) ELECTRICAL CONSTRUCTION:

Conductors must be not smaller than No. 18 B. & S. gage.

On chains or similar parts where conductors are not completely enclosed in metal, the conductors must be stranded and must have rubber insulation not less than 1-32 inch in thickness. Wires and flexible cords must, when fixtures are externally wired, be so secured as not to be cut or abraded by the pressure of the fastenings or motion of the fixture, and must be protected against abrasion where they pass through sheet metal pans, canopies, and similar devices.

Conductors must be so spliced or joined as to be both mechanically and electrically secure without solder. The joints must then be soldered (unless made with some form of approved splicing device) and covered with an insulation equal to that on the conductors, i. e., with both rubber and friction tape. Wires must, within the arms and stems, be without splices and taps.

Receptacles having exposed terminals must not be used in canopies unless completely enclosed in metal.

(c) MATERIALS:

Tubing used in threaded arms and stems must not be lighter than No. 18 B. & S. gage. Tubing must not be kinked, flattened or cracked.

Canopies must be made sufficiently large except where outlet boxes are used, to permit the storing away of splices to fixture leads and to allow supply conductors, and especially the splices to wires to be kept clear of the grounded part of gas pipes.

Conductors used in wiring fixtures must be of approved fixture wire, approved flexible cord, or approved rubber covered wire, excepting that conductors having approved slow-burning or other heat-resisting coverings must be used in wiring fixtures in which the wiring is exposed from the heat of the lamps to temperatures in excess of 120 degrees Fahr.; (49 degrees Centigrade.)

All fixtures must, where possible, be sufficiently ventilated and the wiring must be so disposed as to avoid exposing the wiring to high temperatures.

Canopy insulators, when required, must be of some approved type. They must be securely fastened in place so as to separate the canopies thoroughly and permanently from the surfaces and outlet boxes from which they are designed to be insulated. A strip of a good grade of hard fibre 1-16 inch thick, permanently attached to the canopy at the ends, and at intermediate points in such a manner that the strip will permanently extend at least 3-16 inch beyond the entire upper edge of the canopy rim will be acceptable. Where the above construction is impractical a sheet of a good grade of hard fibre 1-16 inch thick, permanently attached to the canopy and cut to conform to the general outline of the canopy and with the edges of the sheet at least flush with the edges of the canopy will be acceptable. The insulating strip or sheet must be secured by rivets or screws and the rivets or screws must be so located or countersunk that the desired effective insulation distance is obtained.

(78) RHEOSTATS, RESISTANCE BOXES AND EQUALIZERS:

(For installation rules see Nos. 4-a and 8-c.)

(a) TYPES:

Rheostats used in dusty or linty places or where exposed to flyings of combustible material, must be so constructed that even if the resistive conductor be fused by excessive current the arc or any attendant flame will be quickly and safely extinguished. Rheostats used in places where the above conditions do not exist may be of any approved type.

(b) MOUNTING:

Must be so constructed that when mounted on a plane surface the casing will make contact with such surface only at the points of support. An air space of at least one-fourth inch between the rheostat casing and the supporting surface will be required.

(c) MARKING:

The terminals of motor-starting rheostats must be marked to indicate to what part of the circuit each is to be connected, as "line," "armature" and "field"

(d) CONTACTS:

The design of the fixed and movable contacts and the resistance in each section must be such as to secure the least tendency toward arcing and roughening of the contacts, even with careless handling or the presence of dirt.

In motor-starting rheostats the final contact, if any, on which the arm is brought to rest in the starting position must have no electrical connection.

(e) NO-VOLTAGE RELEASE:

Motor-starting rheostats must be so designed that the contact arm cannot be left on intermediate segments, and for direct current circuits must be provided with an automatic device which will interrupt the supply circuit before the speed of the motor falls to less than one-third of its normal value. In motor-starting rheostats for alternating current circuits the automatic interrupting device may be omitted.

(79) AUTO-STARTERS:

MAXIMUM OF 100 HORSE POWER AND 3,500 VOLTS.

(Under this class are included all such devices for starting A. C. motors as employ transformer windings whereby the potential impressed upon the motor terminals during process of starting may be made less than the full line voltage and which have switching devices for accomplishing the result.

Apparatus designed for starting A. C. motors by employing ohmic resistance coils are to be as required under No. 78).

(a) Coils and switches of auto-starters designated for use in dusty and linty places or where exposed to flyings of combustible material, must be completely enclosed in substantial metal cases so constructed as to effectually exclude ordinary dust, lint, or flyings of combustible material.

Auto-starters used in places where the above conditions do not exist may be of any approved type.

(b) Cases for either transformer coils or switches must provide for access to the interior for inspection and for renewal of oil, and must be so constructed that when mounted on a plane surface the casing will make contact with such surface only at points of support. An air space at least one-fourth of an inch between the casing and supporting surface will be required.

(c) The oil tank shall be marked in a suitable manner to indicate the proper oil level. When such device carries a visual oil indicator, the marking shall be for the proper oil level with the starter assembled. If the visual indicator is not used, markings shall indicate the oil level prior to assembling.

(d) The switch must provide an off position, a running position and at least one starting position. It must be so arranged that it will be held in off and running positions but cannot be left in a starting position, or without the proper running overload protective devices in the circuit.

(80) REACTIVE COILS AND CONDENSERS:

(a) Reactive coils must be made of incombustible material, mounted on incombustible bases and treated, in general, as sources of heat.

(b) Condensers must be treated like other apparatus operating with equivalent voltage and currents. They must have incombustible cases and supports, and must be isolated from all combustible materials and, in general, treated as sources of heat.

(81) AIR COOLED TRANSFORMERS:

(For installation rules see Nos. 11, 36 and 45.)

(The following sections do not apply to transformers installed in Central or Sub-stations (see No. 11), in fireproof vaults in buildings (see No. 45), nor to instrument transformers)

MOUNTING:

(a) Must be so constructed that when mounted on a plane surface the casing will make contact with such surface only at the points of support. An air space of at least one-fourth of an inch between the transformer casing and the supporting surface is hereby required.

(b) Transformers for bell-ringing and other signaling service only may be used provided all the wiring on the high voltage side is in accordance with Class C. The rating of the high voltage winding must not be over 250 volts.

(82) Left blank for future use.

(83) ELECTRICAL SIGNS. (FOR LOW POTENTIAL SYSTEMS ONLY.)

(For installation rules see No. 23-d.)

(a) MATERIAL:

Must be constructed entirely of metal or other approved incombustible material except that wood may be used on outside for decoration if kept at least two inches from nearest lamp receptacles

Sheet metal must be not less than No. 28 U. S. metal gage.

All metal must be galvanized, enameled or treated with at least two coats of anti-corrosive paint, or otherwise protected in an approved manner against corrosion.

(b) CONSTRUCTION:

Must be so constructed as to secure ample strength and rigidity.

Must be so constructed as to be practically weatherproof and so as to enclose all terminals and wiring other than the supply leads, except that open work will be permitted for signs on roofs or open ground where not subject to mechanical injury, provided the wiring is in accordance with Section (e) below.

Transformers unless of the weather-proof type, cut-outs, flashers, and other similar devices, if on or within the body or structure of the sign, must be in a separate, completely enclosed, accessible weatherproof box or cabinet of metal of thickness not less than that of the metal of the sign itself.

The above devices if otherwise located must be enclosed in approved cut-out boxes or cabinets.

Each compartment must have suitable provision for drainage through one or more holes each not less than one-quarter inch in diameter.

(c) RECEPTACLES:

Must be so designed as to afford permanent and reliable means to prevent possible turning; must be so designed and placed that terminals will be at least one-half inch from other terminals and from metal of the sign except that where open work is permitted, this separation must be one inch.

Miniature receptacles will not be permitted for use in outdoor signs.

(d) WIRING:

Must be approved rubber covered, and not less than No. 14 B. & S. gage.

Must be neatly run, and so disposed and fastened as to be mechanically secure.

Must be soldered to terminals, and exposed parts of wires and terminals must be treated to prevent corrosion.

Must, where they pass through walls or partitions of the sign, be protected by approved bushings.

On outside of sign structures, except where open work is permitted, must be in approved metal conduit or in approved lead sheathed armored cable.

For open work, wire must be rigidly supported on incombustible, nonabsorptive insulators, which separate the wires at least one inch from the surface wired over. Rigid supporting requires, under ordinary conditions where wiring over flat surfaces, supports at least every four and one-half feet. If the wires are liable to be disturbed, the distances between supports must be shortened.

For open work in those parts of circuits where wires are connected to approved receptacles which hold them at least one inch from surface wired over, and which are placed not over one foot apart, such receptacles will be considered to afford the necessary support and spacing of the wires. Between receptacles more than one foot, but less than two feet apart, an additional incombustible, non-absorptive insulator maintaining a separation and spacing equivalent to the receptacles must be used. Except as above specified, wires must be kept apart at least two and one-half inches for voltage up to 300, and four inches for higher voltages.

(e) Leads from sign must pass through the walls of sign either through approved metal conduit or armored cable, or must be neatly cabled and pass through one or more approved incombustible, non-absorptive bushings.

(f) Not over 1,320 watts shall be dependent upon final cut-out.

(84) Left blank for future use.

MISCELLANEOUS.

(85) SIGNALING SYSTEMS:

Governing wires for telephone, telegraph (except wireless telegraph apparatus), district messenger and call-bell circuits, fire and burglar alarms, and all similar systems which are hazardous only because of their liability to become crossed with electric light, heat or power circuits.

(a) Outside wiring not run in block system must be run in underground ducts or strung on poles, and not run over the roofs of buildings, and must not be placed on the same cross-arm with electric light or power wires. They should not occupy the same duct, manhole or handhole of conduit systems with electric light or power wires, except in the case of those owned and used by public utility corporations who operate said light and power systems.

Single manholes, or handholes separated into sections by means of partitions of brick or tile will be considered as conforming with the above rule.

WHEN THE ENTIRE CIRCUIT FROM CENTRAL STATION TO BUILDING IS RUN IN UNDERGROUND CONDUITS, SECTIONS (b) TO (m) INCLUSIVE DO NOT APPLY.

(b) When outside wires are run on same pole with electric light or power wires, the distance between the two inside pins of each cross-arm must not be less than twenty-four inches. The foregoing is not to be taken as preventing the use of pole brackets when confined to one side of the pole.

Signaling wires must be placed on the lower cross-arms.

When the wires are carried in approved cables, the next three sections (c), (d) and (e) do not apply.

(c) Where wires are attached to the outside walls of buildings, they must have approved rubber insulating covering, and on frame buildings or frame portions of other buildings shall be supported on glass or porcelain insulators or knobs.

(d) The wires from last outside support to the cut-outs or protectors must be of copper, and must have an approved rubber insulation. Must be provided with drip loops immediately outside the building and at entrance.

(e) Wires must enter building through approved incombustible, nonabsorptive, insulating bushings sloping upward from the outside and both wires may enter through the same bushing if desired.

INSTALLATION WHERE THE CURRENT CARRYING PARTS OF THE APPARATUS INSTALLED ARE CAPABLE OF CARRYING INDEFINITELY A CURRENT OF TEN AMPERES.

(c) An all-metallic circuit shall be provided, except in telegraph systems.

(d) At the entrance of wires to building approved single pole cut-outs, designed for 250-600 volts potential and containing fuses rated at not over ten amperes capacity, shall be provided for each wire. These cut-outs must not be placed in the immediate vicinity of easily ignitable materials, or where exposed to inflammable gases, or dust or flyings of combustible material.

(e) The wires inside building shall be of copper not less than No. 16 B. & S. gage, and must have insulation and be supported the same as would be required for an installation of electric light or power wiring 0-600 volts potential.

(f) The instruments shall be mounted on bases constructed of incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material. Holes for the supporting screws must be so located, or countersunk, that there will be at least one-half inch space, measured over the surface, between the head of the screw and the nearest live metal part.

INSTALLATION WHERE THE CURRENT CARRYING PARTS OF THE APPARATUS INSTALLED ARE NOT CAPABLE OF CARRYING INDEFINITELY A CURRENT OF TEN AMPERES:

(j) Must be provided with an approved protective device located as near as possible to the entrance of wires to building. The protector must not be placed in the immediate vicinity of easily ignitable materials, or where exposed to inflammable gases or dust or flyings of combustible materials.

(k) Wires from entrance to buildings to protector must be supported on porcelain insulations, so that they will come in contact with nothing except their designed supports.

(l) The ground wire of the protective device shall be run in accordance with the following requirements:

1. Shall be of copper and not smaller than No. 18 B. & S. gage.

2. Must have an insulating covering approved for voltages from 0-600, except that the preservative compound may be omitted.

3. Must run in as straight a line as possible to a good permanent ground. This may be obtained by connecting to a water or gas pipe connected to the street mains or to a ground rod or pipe driven in permanently damp earth. When connections are made to pipes, preference shall be given to water pipes. If attachment is made to gas pipe, the connection in all cases must be made between the meter and the street mains. In every case the connection shall be made as near as possible to the earth.

When the ground wire is attached to a water pipe or a gas pipe, it may be connected by means of an approved ground clamp fastened to a thoroughly clean portion of said pipe, or the pipe shall be thoroughly cleaned and tinned with rosin flux solder, and the ground wire shall then be wrapped tightly around the pipe and thoroughly soldered to it.

When the ground wire is attached to a ground rod driven into the earth, the ground wire shall be soldered to the rod in a similar manner.

Steam or hot-water pipes must not be used for a protector ground.

(m) The protector to be approved must comply with the following requirements:

FOR INSTRUMENT CIRCUITS OF TELEGRAPH SYSTEMS:

1. An approved single pole cut-out, in each wire, designed for 2,000 volts potential, and containing fuses rated at not over one ampere capacity. When main line cut-outs are installed as called for in Section (g), the instrument cut-outs may be placed between the switchboard and the instrument as near the switchboard as possible.

FOR ALL OTHER SYSTEMS:

1. Must be mounted on incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating bases, so designed that when the protector is in place, all parts which may be alive will be thoroughly insulated from the wall to which the protector is attached.

2. Must have the following parts:

A lightning arrester which will operate with a difference of potential between wires of not over 500 volts, and so arranged that the chance of accidental grounding is reduced to a minimum.

A fuse designed to open the circuit in case the wires become crossed with light or power circuits. The fuse must be able to open the circuits without arcing or serious flashing when crossed with any ordinary commercial light or power circuit.

A heat coil if the sensitiveness of the instrument demands it, which will operate before a sneak current can damage the instruments the protector is guarding.

Heat coils are necessary in all circuits normally closed through magnet windings, which cannot indefinitely carry a current of at least five amperes.

3. The fuses must be so placed as to protect the arrester and heat coils, and the protector terminals must be plainly marked "line" "instrument," "ground."

An easily read abbreviation of the above words will be permitted.

THE FOLLOWING RULES APPLY TO ALL SYSTEMS WHETHER THE WIRES FROM THE CENTRAL OFFICE TO THE BUILDINGS ARE OVERHEAD OR UNDERGROUND.

(n) Wires beyond the protector, or wires inside buildings where no protector is used, must be neatly arranged and securely fastened in place in some convenient, workmanlike manner.

They must not come nearer than two inches to any electric light or power wire in the building, unless separated therefrom by some continuous and firmly fixed non-conductor creating a permanent separation; this non-conductor to be in addition to the regular insulation on the wire.

(o) Wires where bunched together in a vertical run within any building must have a fire-resistive covering sufficient to prevent the wires from carrying fire from floor to floor unless they are run either in incombustible tubing or in a fireproof shaft.

Signaling wires and electric light or power wires may be run in the same shaft, provided that one of these classes of wires is run in incombustible tubing, or provided that when run otherwise these two classes of wires shall be separated from each other by at least two inches.

In no case shall signaling wires be run in the same tube with electric light or power wires.

(p) Transformers or other devices for supplying current to signaling systems from light, heat or power circuits must be of a design expressly approved for this purpose. The primary wiring must be installed in accordance with the rules for "Class C," and the secondary wiring in accordance with "Class E."

(86) WIRELESS TELEGRAPH APPARATUS:

IN SETTING UP WIRELESS TELEGRAPH APPARATUS (SO CALLED) ALL WIRING PERTAINING THERE-TO MUST CONFORM TO THE GENERAL REQUIREMENTS OF THIS ORDINANCE FOR THE CLASS OF WORK INSTALLED AND THE FOLLOWING ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENTS:

(a) Aerial supports to be constructed and installed in a strong and durable manner, and aerial conductors, with wires leading from same to ground switch, must be supported on approved insulators, and these conductors to be kept at a distance of not less than 6 inches from the building except where entering same through approved incombustible, non-absorptive insulators.

(b) Aerial conductors to be permanently and effectively grounded at all times when station is not in operation by a conductor not smaller than No. 6 B. & S. gage copper wire, run in as direct a line as possible to water pipe on the street side of all connections to said water pipe within the premises, or to some other equally satisfactory earth connection or to such other ground as may be allowed by special permission in writing by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

(c) Or the aerial to be permanently connected at all times to earth in the manner specified above, through a short-gap lightning arrester; said arrester to have a gap of not over .015 inch between brass or copper plates not less than 2 1-2 inches in length parallel to the gap and 1 1-2 inches the other way, with a thickness of not less than one-eighth inch mounted upon incombustible, non-absorptive, insulating material of such dimensions as to give ample strength. Other approved arresters of equally low resistance and equally substantial construction may be used.

(d) In cases where the aerial is grounded as specified in Section (b), the switch employed to join the aerial to the ground connection shall not be smaller than a standard 100 ampere knife switch.

(e) Where supply is obtained direct from the street service the circuit must be installed in approved metal conduits or armored cable. In order to protect the supply system from high potential surges, there must be inserted in circuit either a transformer having a ratio which will have a potential on the secondary leads not to exceed 550 volts, or two condensers in series across the line.

(f) Transformers, voltage reducers or similar devices must be of some approved type.

(87) ELECTRO GAS LIGHTING:

(a) Electric gas lighting, unless it is the fractional system, must not be used on the same fixture with the electric light.

(88) INSULATING RESISTANCES. LIGHT AND POWER CIRCUITS:

Where a test of the wiring of a building is required by the Superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection the wiring must comply with the following requirements:

The complete installation must have a resistance between conductors and between all conductors and the ground (not including attachments, sockets, receptacles, and similar devices) not less than that given in the following table:

Up to 5 amperes	4,000,000 ohms.
Up to 10 amperes	2,000,000 ohms.
Up to 25 amperes	800,000 ohms.
Up to 50 amperes	400,000 ohms.
Up to 100 amperes	200,000 ohms.
Up to 200 amperes	100,000 ohms.
Up to 400 amperes	50,000 ohms.
Up to 800 amperes	25,000 ohms.
Up to 1,600 amperes	12,500 ohms.

The test must be made with all cut-outs and safety devices in place. If the lamp sockets, receptacles, electroliers, and similar devices, are also connected, only one-half of the resistance specified in the tables will be required.

the South Pittsburgh Water Company, for a period terminating December 31st, 1922, providing for the purchase of water by the City of Pittsburgh and the sale thereof to consumers within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh at City rates, and providing for the payment of the cost thereof.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the proper officers of the City of Pittsburgh be and they are hereby authorized and directed to enter into a contract with the South Pittsburgh Water Company in the manner and form as follows:

ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT.

Made and entered into this _____ day of _____, 1918, by and between the City of Pittsburgh, a municipal corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, party of the first part, and South Pittsburgh Water Company, a corporation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania party of the second part.

Whereas, the South Pittsburgh Water Company supplies water in certain parts of the City of Pittsburgh lying south of the Ohio and Monongahela rivers; and

Whereas, the City of Pittsburgh desires to purchase water from the South Pittsburgh Water Company so that it may resell the same to the various consumers of water now or hereafter attached to existing water mains or to any future extensions constructed by the said South Pittsburgh Water Company within the present limits of the City of Pittsburgh;

Now, therefore, this agreement witnesseth that, in consideration of the covenants and agreements herein contained, it is hereby agreed that the City of Pittsburgh shall purchase from the South Pittsburgh Water Company all water used by the consumers of the South Pittsburgh Water Company now or hereafter connected to the water pipes of the said Company within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh, the quantities of said water so purchased to be determined by the meters of the South Pittsburgh Water Company located within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh during the term of this contract.

The work of reading the meters of said consumers shall be performed by the agents and employees of the South Pittsburgh Water Company and the South Pittsburgh Water Company shall render to the City of Pittsburgh quarterly statements of such meter readings, together with statements of the amounts which are charged against each customer based upon the aforesaid meter readings and upon the schedule of rates of the South Pittsburgh Water Company.

The City of Pittsburgh shall have the right to check any and all of said meter readings from time to time and test any and all of said meters, and, from time to time, to make inspections of the books, records and accounts of the South Pittsburgh Water Company relating to said consumers as may be necessary to fully carry out the provisions of this contract and to ascertain the correctness of any bill rendered by the South Pittsburgh Water Company to the City of Pittsburgh.

The City of Pittsburgh shall pay to the South Pittsburgh Water Company for all water supplied by it through the service pipes of the various consumers located within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh and upon the water mains of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, a sum to be determined quarterly upon the following basis:

The sum total of the schedule charges against each consumer of the South Pittsburgh Water Company located on the mains of the South Pittsburgh Water Company within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh as provided for in this contract, said charge to each of such consumers to be arrived at by the application of the schedule of rates and minima of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, the payment of said aggregate sum to be made by the City of Pittsburgh to the South Pittsburgh Water Company, less a discount of five per cent provided said bill is paid within thirty (30) days from date said bill is rendered by the South Pittsburgh Water Company to the City of Pittsburgh.

The intent of this contract is to create a basis by which domestic consumers located in the City of Pittsburgh and supplied from the water works system of the South Pittsburgh Water Company may pay the same rates for water as are charged by the City of Pittsburgh through the City of Pittsburgh assuming any excess in the charge calculated at the rates of the South Pittsburgh Water Company over the charge when calculated at the rates of the City of Pittsburgh; but this contract does not give to the City of Pittsburgh any control over said consumers or the operation of the South Pittsburgh Water Company other than it had, or would have had, without the making of this contract, and the South Pittsburgh Water Company shall have the right to continue to regulate and control the delivery of water and the service to such consumers the same as to its consumers in any other territory served by it.

In case the City of Pittsburgh shall at any time within the term of this contract, acquire the ownership of the property or plant of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, then this contract shall thereupon cease and terminate and this contract shall not be considered or allowed for in any way as an element of value in ascertaining and determining the value of the properties of the South Pittsburgh Water Company.

It is hereby understood and agreed that neither the purpose nor intent, nor the obligation of this contract, if and when approved by the Public Service Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, is such as to impair or in any wise affect the exercise by said Commission of any of the powers vested in it by the Public Service Company Law, approved July 26, 1913.

This contract is entered into by the City of Pittsburgh by virtue of an Ordinance of the City of Pittsburgh duly enacted, entitled "An Ordinance authorizing the proper officers of the City of Pittsburgh to enter into a contract with the South Pittsburgh Water Company for a period terminating December 31, 1922, providing for the purchase of water by the City of Pittsburgh and the sale thereof to consumers within the limits of the City of Pittsburgh, at City rates, and providing for the payment of the cost thereof," and by the South Pittsburgh Water Company pursuant to a Resolution of the Directors of said Company, duly passed on the day of _____, 1918.

AN ORDINANCE—Vacating Blair Street, as laid out in the Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, approved by Council November 11, 1872, from Hollywood Street southeastwardly for the distance of 398.50 feet; Composite Way, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots and the A. E. Succop Plan, approved March 30, 1883, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Hollywood Street, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, from Blair Street to Second Avenue; Kansas Street, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams and A. E. Succop Plans of Lots, between Hollywood Street and Longworth Street; Lytle Street, as opened by Ordinance No. 327, approved December 15, 1892, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Rome Way, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, from Hollywood Street southeastwardly for the distance of 398.17 feet, and an unnamed twenty-foot way, lying between Blair Street and Lytle Street, laid out in the said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, from Hollywood Street southeastwardly for a distance of 398.25 feet, in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh.

Whereas, Thomas Williams, being then the owner of a certain tract of land in what is now the Fifteenth Ward, did in the year 1872, lay out the said tract of land into a plan of lots showing lots, streets, and alleys and by said plan the said Thomas Williams did dedicate or offer to dedicate the streets shown upon the said plan to public use, and it now appears from the city records that the said streets were very little, if any, used by the City, and thereby the dedication of said streets is incomplete, and it also appears that the land lying within the streets of this plan have been in the possession and occupancy of the abutting owners thereof for many years; and

Whereas, Likewise, A. E. Succop, being then the owner of a tract of land adjoining the aforesaid tract of Williams, did on March 30, 1883, lay out his tract into a plan of lots, showing lots, streets and alleys, and that said Succop did likewise dedicate or offer to dedicate for public use certain streets shown upon the said plan, and the streets thereon were extensions of the streets of the Williams plan over Succop's land, and it further appears that the said streets extended aforesaid have been little used by the public; and

Whereas, The said streets, as shown upon the said plans, are of no public value, and are in part of doubtful legal status, and the owners of the lots abutting thereon have offered to pay to the City a certain sum of money if the City will, by vacating said streets, relinquish whatever rights the City may have thereto; and

Whereas, It appears by the petition and affidavit on file in the office of the City Clerk, that all of the property owners fronting and abutting upon the lines of Blair Street, from Hollywood Street to the southerly line of the Thomas Williams Plan of Lots; Composite Way, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Hollywood Street, from Blair Street to Second Avenue; Kansas Street, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Lytle Street, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Roma Way, from Hollywood Street to the southerly line of the Thomas Williams Plan of Lots and an unnamed twenty-foot way, lying between Lytle Street and Blair Street, from Hollywood Street to the southerly line of the Thomas Williams Plan of Lots in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, have petitioned the Council of the City of Pittsburgh to enact an ordinance for the vacation of the same; therefore,

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Blair Street, as laid out in the Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, approved by Councils November 11, 1872, from Hollywood Street southeastwardly for the distance of 398.50 feet; Composite Way, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots and the A. E. Succop Plan, approved March 30, 1883, from Hollywood Street to Longworth Street; Hollywood Street, as laid out in said Thomas Williams Plan of Lots, from Blair Street to Second Avenue; Kansas Street, as laid out in the said Thomas Williams and A. All of the said work, including the repaving of the street damaged, shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

Section 3. The minimum clearance of the bridges over Anderson Street and Sandusky Street shall not be less than the clearances as provided in Section 1. First Clause, of an agreement entered into by the City of Allegheny and the Pennsylvania Company, operating the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway, dated November 1, 1901, in pursuance of an ordinance of said city entitled "An ordinance to authorize the proper officers for and on behalf of the City of Allegheny to enter into a contract with the Pennsylvania Company, operating the railway of the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway Company, elevation and depression of said railway in said city between McClure Avenue and the Allegheny River bridge, the vacation and change of grade of streets and other matters incident to or con-

Whereas, The City of Pittsburgh by resolution No. 398 and Bill No. 3969, 1917, approved by the Mayor October 1, 1917, made a settlement with Isaac L. Knowlson, wherein the said Isaac L. Knowlson was to discontinue and settle the case against the city at No. 1055 July Term, 1916, Docket "C," in which suit he was asking damages of the city for depriving him of the frontage on Pioneer Avenue. The said settlement provided that the City of Pittsburgh should deed over to the said Isaac L. Knowlson the strip of property which was prior to that time owned by the city, thus giving Mr. Knowlson's property a frontage on Pioneer Avenue of which he had been deprived by reason of the rewidening and re-locating of Pioneer Avenue. The City of Pittsburgh has prepared and executed a deed dated November 19, 1917, conveying the said property to the said Isaac L. Knowlson and the said Isaac L. Knowlson is now ready to withdraw his damage suit and accept the said deed upon the city satisfying a municipal lien of an indeterminate amount which was filed November, 1916, Municipal Lien Docket, in the Recorder's Office of Allegheny County at No. 50 July Term, 1917; this lien being filed against about fifteen feet of the frontage of his property; and

Whereas, The resolution above referred to has failed to recite that the benefit assessment against the said Isaac L. Knowlson's property was to be stricken off, and the costs on the lien and the costs on the appeal to be charged to the City of Pittsburgh, all of which matters were brought to the notice of the Council prior to the passage of said resolution but inadvertently omitted from the resolution; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That upon the withdrawal of the damage suit at No. 1055 July Term, 1916, Docket "C," and upon acceptance of the deed from the City of the strip of land adjoining the frontage of property owned by Isaac L. Knowlson, the City Solicitor is authorized to satisfy the municipal lien filed at No. 50 July Term, 1917, and to have the costs on the lien and the costs on the appeal charged to the City of Pittsburgh.

Whereas, The said George R. Cobun in conforming his property to the new grade of the street was obliged to tear down and reconstruct the said retaining wall at a cost of $1,200.00; and

Whereas, His case for damages was heard before the Board of Viewers and the Board of Viewers in determining the damages, allowed him $500.00 damages which they took from the benefit assessment for the grading and paving of the street, leaving the assessment on his property of no damages and no benefits; and

Whereas, The said George R. Cobun being out of the city at the time for the taking of appeals, an appeal was not taken in his case to the Common Pleas Court; and

Whereas, The property has been greatly damaged in excess of any benefits by reason of it being high above the said street, the said Board of Viewers offsetting a benefit assessment of $500.00 by damages, which damages of $500.00 now allowed, taken from the $1,200.00, the cost of the wall which is now erected along the front of his property, leaves the amount of $700.00; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized and directed to issue, and the City Controller to countersign, a warrant in favor of George R. Cobun for the sum of $700.00, for damage to his property and charge the same to Code Account No. 42, Contingent Fund.

Whereas, After the final confirmation of the report of the Board of Viewers on the grading and paving of Arbor Street, when the physical work of grade construction was being done, a deep cut was made in front of the properties of Robert Doran, Christian S. Golder and Harris Barton, and the removal of this support caused the hillside to slide upon a stratum of underlying clay, which condition could not be and was not anticipated by the Viewers in adjudicating the damages and benefits on said improvement, nor by the City in its preparation of plans for the same; and

Whereas, The slide caused by said grading resulted in almost the total destruction of the lot and building thereon belonging to Robert

Doran and a like result to the property of Christian S. Golder and a serious damage to the property of Harris Barton; and

Whereas, After a full investigation of all the facts and conditions existing at the present time, and upon the recommendation of the Law Department after said matter had been submitted and reported upon by said department, it is determined that certain additional damages should be allowed to said several properties abutting upon said improvement; now, therefore, be it

Whereas, Said St. Michael's Cemetery contends that it is exempt from municipal assessments under the laws exempting from such claims places of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit; that an error was made by its counsel in not taking an appeal from the award of said Board of Viewers instead of filing exceptions thereto, so that said Cemetery could have shown on trial in the Court of Common Pleas all the facts on the question whether said Cemetery was a place of burial not used or held for private or corporate profit, and thus have secured the exemption to which it is entitled by the aforesaid laws; and

Whereas, It was necessary to lay a 6 inch water line on Verona Boulevard from Lincoln avenue to Gopher Street, and the City did not have the labor force to do the work; and

Whereas, The M. O'Herron Company had the contract to grade, curb and pave the herein mentioned street, we asked them to submit a bid; and

Whereas, We received only one bid, that of the M. O'Herron Company for One Dollar and Five Cents ($1.05) per foot for a distance of 1025.6 feet, or a total bid amounting to Ten Hundred Seventy-six Dollars and Eighty-eight Cents ($1076.88), which was fair, we asked them to do the work; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized and directed to issue, and the City Controller to countersign a warrant in favor of the M. O'Herron Company for the sum of Ten Hundred Seventy-six Dollars and Eighty-eight Cents ($1,076.88), said amount to be in full payment for all labor work necessary to lay the above mentioned water line, and charge same to Appropriation No. 171.

Whereas, In change of grade and grading, paving and curbing of Graphic Street, the Viewers assessed benefits in the sum of $300.00 against the property of Mary and Joseph Petronia, who are the owners of two lots fronting on the westwardly side of Graphic Street directly opposite the intersection of Flemington and Kennebec Streets; and,

Whereas, At the hearing before the Board of Viewers, the testimony developed that the Petronia property was four feet below the grade of the street, and the bid of John Eichleay, Jr., Company was offered in evidence by defendants putting the cost of raising the house to the present grade of the street at $863.00, and an estimate of Joseph Crimeni for building a retaining wall in front of their property at $149.00; and,

Whereas, Mary and Joseph Petronia feel that the benefit assessment of $300.00 is not fair and just inasmuch as they would be put to a further expense of $863.00 to raise the building to conform to the present grade of Graphic Street, and being poor people and not being able to employ counsel, ask that your Honorable Body allow them $500.00, with which they could pay the benefit assessment and the balance to be applied to the cost of raising the building; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Mayor be and he is hereby authorized and directed to issue, and the City Controller to countersign, a warrant in favor of Mary and Joseph Petronia in the sum of $500.00, and charge the same to Code Account No. 42, Contingent Fund.

Whereas, Complaint was filed by the City of Pittsburgh before the Public Service Commission on the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating to matters of service, facilities, rates and charges of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and

Whereas, In order to better accomplish the purpose of said Complaint, an engineering conference committee was created consisting of two representatives of the City of Pittsburgh, two representatives of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and the Chief Engineer of the Public Service Commission, and

Whereas, The Mayor of the City has heretofore appointed N. S. Sprague as one of the representatives of the City of Pittsburgh on said conference committee, and the performance of the said work requires and has heretofore required that special and technical work shall be performed by N. S. Sprague outside of his regular duties and outside of his usual office hours, involving work at night, Sundays and holidays, and

Whereas, Arrangements have heretofore been made and the said N. S. Sprague was appointed with the understanding that said overtime would be paid for at the rate of $200.00 per month, based upon overtime outside of the regular office hours, and

Whereas, It appears that the said N. S. Sprague has spent, since September 1st, 1917, to June 1st, 1918, a total number of hours equivalent to 3.36 months of overtime, exclusive of the month of December, 1917, which has been provided for by another resolution, and the said N. S. Sprague would therefore be entitled to the total sum of $672.13, for the said period, and

Whereas, It appears that it is to the best interests of the City of Pittsburgh to employ the said N. S. Sprague upon the engineering conference and to continue said employment; now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the proper officers of the City of Pittsburgh be and they are hereby authorized and directed to issue proper warrant of the City of Pittsburgh to the said N. S. Sprague, in the sum of $672.13 for services rendered out of the regular working hours, as representative of the City of Pittsburgh on engineering conference from September 1st, 1917, to June 1st, 1918, exclusive of the month of December, 1917, and the said officers of the City of Pittsburgh be further authorized and directed to continue to pay the said N. S. Sprague for the said special services at the rate of $200.00 per month for overtime work; said payments to continue until the said conference shall complete its work and make its final report; so long as the said N. S. Sprague shall continue to represent the City upon the said Conference, and charge same to Appropriation No. 1080.

Whereas, Through a proceeding on a municipal lien filed at No. 13 June Term, 1908, against property known as lot No. 1 in Joseph C. Seiffert Revised Plan of Lots, located at the corner of Woodland and Shadeland Avenues, 27th Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa., same was sold as the property of Joseph C. Whereas, The Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh has called a great waterways convention to meet in this city on January 7th, and 8th, 1919. The purpose of the convention will be to urge the granting of a sufficient appropriation at the present session of Congress to provide within five years a deep interior waterway extending from the Mississippi River via the Ohio River to Lake Erie and thence to and along the Atlantic Coast. It is already assured that there will be a large attendance of prominent public officials and business men and manufacturers from all the region in and east of the Mississippi River Valley. The securing of such a waterway would be of the utmost importance and value to Pittsburgh as it would vastly increase and cheapen its transportation facilities and greatly increase its industries, population and wealth. In order to provide for necessary expenses of the convention and to properly entertain the distinguished guests and also to make effective the action of the convention at Washington by the publication and presentation of is proceedings to the National Lawmakers, Be it

Which was read.

Mr. Burke moved

The adoption of the resolution, and said:

"Mr. President, I believe this resolution should pass. To compel the firemen to pay a like sum of $2.50 per month into their pension fund would not relieve the policemen from their assessment and would not be of any material advantage to them.

"Furthermore, I do not believe the police of this City want to become part of any scheme to take from their fellow-workers an advantage or benefit.

"I have always been for the betterment of working conditions and an upward standardization of wages. I have never been a party to taking away from any man or set of men a working benefit they obtained; and, inasmuch as to take the $30,000.00 contributed by the City to the Firemen's Pension Fund will not benefit the police—will work a hardship on the firemen—I believe the equitable and just way is to relieve the policemen from paying the $2.50 per month."

Mr. English moved

MAYOR'S OFFICE.

Pittsburgh, January 24, 1919.

Mr. John S. Herron, President, and Members of Council,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen—I herewith return, without my approval, Bill No. 1808, resolution providing that the President of Council assign one man to keep a record of bills introduced in the State Legislature affecting Pittsburgh and that the President of Council procure the services of a competent person to attend the sessions of the Legislature.

This bill, apparently, is designed to employ and keep a lobbyist at Harrisburg. It is not clear whether it is to provide for one or two persons. It appropriates no specified amount. It fixes no salary or definite compensation. It is common street rumor that it is for the personal benefit of the Councilmen of Pittsburgh. Council should not appropriate or spend the taxpayers' money in any sum whatever for their personal benefit.

The resolution implies, in the following language, "Some of this legislation is likely to be detrimental to the interests of the taxpayers of Pittsburgh," that our members of the Legislature and our members of the Senate are there for the purpose of legislating against the City's interests, instead of legislating for its best interests. I am not willing to be a party to any such inference. Further, I do not approve of spending the City's money for the purposes outlined in this resolution.

Very respectfully yours,
E. V. BABCOCK,

Mayor.

Which was read.

Mr. Rauh moved

That the communication be laid on the table for one week.

Which motion prevailed.

And

Bill No. 1808. Resolution authorizing and directing the President of Council to procure the services of a competent person to be in attendance at the sessions of the Legislature for the purpose of keeping a record of every bill introduced in the Legislature affecting the City of Pittsburgh.

In Council, January 20, 1919. Rule suspended, read three times and finally passed.

Which was read.

Mr. Rauh moved

That Bill No. 1808 be laid on the table for one week.

Which motion prevailed.

At this time Hon. E. V. Babcock, Mayor, appeared before Council and presented the following:

No. 2132.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.

February 1, 1919.

Mr. John S. Herron, President, and
Members of Council of the City of Pittsburgh.

Dear Sirs—I herewith recommend to you a list of improvements to be made in the City of Pittsburgh to be financed by a people's bond issue. This is in harmony with my pre-election promises to the people of Pittsburgh, and, with one or two exceptions, covers subjects that have been before the officials of Pittsburgh as well as the public for some time past.

Conspicuous among the items is a great, new thoroughfare, that will accommodate the people of the eastern part of the City, North Side, West End and South Side, creating a new highway (the Monongahela boulevard) from Craft avenue to Second avenue and Grant street, thence widening and improving Second avenue through to Liberty avenue, with a proper outlet along Ferry street. This new thoroughfare will be a conspicuous improvement, making the route shorter in time and distance from Oakland and Squirrel Hill to the downtown district, to the North Side, West End, South Side, and vice versa. It will have the effect of greatly enhancing the value and improving the property two blocks each side of Second avenue, making it vastly more accessible and useful, and should have the effect of relieving congestion in the downtown district in general.

Page one of the recommendations represents the best judgment of the City Planning Commission, who have had weekly meetings since the signing of the armistice and have given the subject great study.

The item of Bigelow boulevard improvements, which, I understand, Council is already on record as favoring, has the effect of largely eliminating two bad and dangerous curves and erecting a badly-needed sidewalk on one side and a retaining wall to prevent continual slides on the other.

The general street repaving item is probably all that can be spent during the present administration in addition to the annual appropriations that Council are wisely making. This I consider to be one of the most important items on the list. Nothing can enhance the conditions of our City so much as good streets, and when once in good condition it should be the City's policy to keep them so.

Many of the items are self-explanatory.

I desire to particularly call your attention to the purchase of the Exposition buildings, which, in my judgment, should be accomplished. These valuable buildings, costing nearly a million dollars, are practically dormant as far as rendering service to the City. They can be easily put to the following uses:

Machinery Hall could be turned into a terminal freight station and leased to the Pittsburgh Railways Company for the handling of freight and express, which will be greatly advantageous to the people of Pittsburgh and help relieve congestion to our streets.

We can transfer to the main buildings the great repair shops of the Division of Motor Vehicles, of the Police Department and of the Fire Department, and make it the headquarters for the carpenter shop, plumbing shop and paint shop, all City activities now scattered about the City, for which large amounts of rent are paid.

The Music Hall can be used for large meetings of any kind for the masses, being easily accessible from the North Side, South Side and the downtown district. The City already owns the grounds on which these buildings are situated and is receiving no income and very little benefit. This will be a practical and economic proposition.

The Eighteenth Regiment Armory will give Pittsburg an opportunity to join the State and County in helping to erect a coliseum that will be a good thing for the City, allowing us, at the same time, to erect a lasting testimonial to the boys who went to the front to serve their country.

The issuing of $14,000,000.00 worth of bonds will reflect itself in the tax rate to the extent of about 1.4 mills, which will be reduced each year.

I have had great difficulty in reducing the amount to the within figure. We are now in the midst of a surplus of labor. Many men in our City are seeking employment, which they cannot find. I strongly recommend that you give this your early and immediate consideration, with a view of taking the issue before the people for their consideration, hoping that we can get final action which will enable us to make the dirt fly at the earliest possible date. I understand that it is your purpose to have the public hearings on the subject. If so, you should arrange to limit them to a reasonable time, so as not to let it drag along too far.

Very respectfully yours,

(Signed) E. V. BABCOCK,

Mayor.

And Mayor Babcock said:

"Mr. President, now, in addition to this, the reason I come before you personally is to advise you that I had an interview this afternoon with the receivers of the Pittsburgh Railways Company regarding the leasing of portion of the Exposition building to them for a terminal freight station. They have been studying this matter for some months; in fact, ever since the new receivers have been appointed, and this is the second interview I have had with them in my office.

"They make an offer, which they will confirm in writing, of $9,000.00 a year for the first year; $10,000.00 for the second year; $11,000.00 for the third year, and $12,000.00 thereafter a year for the rental of Machinery Hall, based on a ten-year lease. It will cost them about $25,000.00 to put in the siding, the permit for which you will have to grant; that is, you will have to give them a franchise to put in the necessary siding. They say, also, that they will have to cut the street on Penn avenue going under the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge. This will not in any way affect the street.

"By leasing this property to them it will give the City a fixed income from that end of the proposition, Machinery Hall. They have examined all sites, and they claim that Machinery Hall is the least expensive of all sites inspected and that it will cost less to remodel to fit their needs than the other places looked at.

"They express the desire to take their cars off the streets and transfer their freight business to this building. I had the interview today with Mr. Tone and Mr. Fagan; Mr. George and Mr. Fagan being present the other day.

"I am submitting this matter to Council so that it will study it in connection with the other items included in the proposed people's bond issue. You know the amount of rental we pay for buildings in which our machine shops are now housed. The main building will be used as a repair station, and this will save the City about $10,000.00 or more every year, which it now pays for repair shops scattered all over the City. I hope you will consider all these things in connection with your study of the rest of the items for this bond issue.

"The Pittsburgh Railways Company would like to have possession of this property as quickly as possible. The leases on their other property expire May 1, and if they can get possession of this building it will help them very much.

"The officials of the City are at your service in studying these propositions, and any time you want them they will be glad to respond."

Mr. Garland arose and said:

"Mr. Mayor, there is a discrepancy in the amount of millage that will reflect itself in the tax rate. It should be 1.8 mills instead of 1.4 mills, as stated in your communication."

Mayor Babcock:

"Those are the figures that were furnished me by the City Controller's department. The length of the bonds are thirty years, with the exception of the bonds for the repaving of streets, which, I think, should be for fifteen years. However, the length of these bonds is a question we do not have to go into now."

Mr. McArdle arose and said:

"I would like to ask the Mayor if he has prepared for submission to Council a statement covering the present status of the Exposition Society. We discussed it briefly with him in conference. There are some conditions which must be met in their affairs which I am convinced the public will want to know before they vote on this item."

Mayor Babcock:

"I have in my office an elaborate file relating to this subject, but for your information I wish to state that I never approached the members of the Exposition Society on the trade until I found out what we could do with this one building, Machinery Hall, as a warehouse and terminal freight station. I just got that information at 2 o'clock this afternoon. In a general way, I understand that the Pittsburgh Exposition Society, through their board of trustees, will turn this over to the City on payment of the debts, which are $340,000.00, with some accrued interest. I put in the list $360,000.00 for this. My understanding in a general way is that they will turn it over to the City. I don't know what kind of a statement you want. I will look this matter up and submit a statement to you."

Mr. McArdle:

"It should properly come from them, as the proposition is theirs, setting out what their financial status is, and if they will transfer the property to the City, and if they would be willing to do it before the expiration of their lease. The thought I have in mind is that the Council should be able to say that it is good for the people and that it will not be taking a white elephant off somebody's hands. We should have such information as to intelligently answer all questions asked in regard to this proposition."

Mayor Babcock:

"Well, I assume that we can buy it at the price we name. Whether it is good for the City or not is self-evident to me. You can draw your own conclusions. We will get $12,000.00 rent each year after three years, and we will save $8,000.00 that we are now compelled to pay as rental for property used as repair shops. It looks to me like a good business proposition. The service that the Railways Company will render to the public is also self-evident. It is practically doing nothing now."

Mr. Garland:

"Mr. Mayor and Mr. President, it seems to me that, besides getting something from the Exposition Society, we should have something from the Railways Company in regard to hauling freight and light stuff. It will relieve congestion on the streets. In Cleveland the freight business is all done at night. They go out 100 miles with quick transportation service with low rates. We could deliver supplies and materials at 50 cents where it now costs $3.00 and $4.00. The delivery should be done at night. They should furnish cars to give proper service to distributors in the outlying districts."

Mayor Babcock:

"They show a willingness and a disposition to do so. Mr. George was very favorably impressed with the opportunity that the street car company would have a new avenue of revenue and that it would increase their business along this line, which is not now very large.

I raised the point you call attention to, Mr. Garland. The business is small now and I was surprised at the smallness of it. They feel that that business, when they have an opportunity to handle it right, will grow on their hands, and on that basis they made their offer of rental."

Mr. Garland:

"You are asking only for a sufficient amount to pay the Exposition Society for the buildings. The changes, alterations and repairs to be done in that portion to be occupied by the Railways Company will be paid for by the Railways Company."

Mayor Babcock:

"They will make the changes. When we talked about the kind of a lease, they stated that they would not want to spend $25,000.00 for repairs on a short lease. They expressed the opinion that ten or twenty years should be the length of the lease. Their duties as receivers are along certain lines and the prospects of this is pleasing to all three receivers. I believe the business of the company along this line will grow and will be a success."

Mr. McArdle moved

That the Mayor's communication be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Which motion prevailed.

Mr. Garland presented

No. 2133. An Ordinance authorizing and directing the issuance and sale of bonds of the City of Pittsburgh, in the aggregate principal amount of $1,134,000.00, for the purpose of funding existing unfunded indebtedness of the City, consisting of contractors' claims, claims for damages arising from the opening, widening and improving of streets and the construction of sewers, and other floating indebtedness, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon.

Which was read and referred to the Committee on Finance.

Colonel Albert S. McLemore, of the United States Marines, being introduced by the President of Council, said:

"Mr. President and Gentlemen of Council, I esteem it a great honor to say a word to you. I am stationed in Washington on the staff of General Barnett. I am making a tour of the recruiting stations throughout the country and establishing them on a firm basis and putting them back to the old method of recruiting young men for the Marine service.

"The Marines made a wonderful record during the war. During the time the Marines were in action against the Germans the corps' losses amounted to over 100 per cent. Replacements were made, however, to keep the brigade in full strength of 8,000 men. In one battle 5,000 were lost, while in another 2,200 casualties were suffered. Other engagements put the Marine losses over the 8,000 mark, making more than two brigades lost in France, one of which was totally wiped out. Five years ago the officers of the Marines numbered 350. In France the officers' casualties amounted to 350.

"Pittsburgh, as you know, put on a Marine Corps week, and a large number of the most desirable young men were recruited into the Marine service. The Marine branch has always maintained its high standard of efficiency. It accepts men who are physically fit and of good education, and the service has reflected itself by what the men have done in France. They had their opportunity and made good. Pittsburgh, in proportion to its size, has produced more recruits for the Marine Corps than any other city and, as a member of the general's staff, I want to thank you, not only for myself, but General Barnett."

An Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance amending parts of Sections twenty-four, twenty-five and twenty-eight of an ordinance entitled, 'An Ordinance fixing the number of officers and employees of all departments of the City of Pittsburgh, and the rate of compensation thereof,' approved 22nd day of January, A. D. 1919, by providing that the additional salary of thirty dollars ($30.00) per annum referred to therein for certain officers and employees shall be payable only upon an equal sum being likewise paid into the Firemen's Disability Board Funds by such officers and employees from their compensation payable to them by the City of Pittsburgh, and defining the procedure relating thereto."

Which was read.

Mr. Garland moved

A suspension of the rule to allow the second and third readings and final passage of the bill.

Which motion prevailed.

And the bill was read a second time.

Mr. English arose and said:

"Mr. President, I am heartily in favor of the main provisions of Bill No. 2057, File No. 1106. I refer, particularly, to that provision which requires the firemen who wish to become beneficiaries of the City's appropriation of $30.00 per man to pay a like sum of $30.00 each. I repeat that so that there will be no misunderstanding; that the feature of the bill I favor is that any one who expects to be a beneficiary of the pension fund for which the taxpayers provide the money should be willing to contribute something himself to the maintenance of that fund.

"I am not in favor of the second portion of the bill, contained in lines 33 to 38, inclusive, on page 2, and which is repeated later in the bill, which attempts to force from the employees power of attorney by giving the City Controller the right to deduct this $30.00 from the salary of the firemen. I protest against the passage of this particular feature, which takes away from a man an amount of money which he would not want the City to do, even though it is for his own benefit. It may be that that is the best policy; I don't think it is, and for that reason I voice this protest against the provision.

"I think our whole duty lies in setting up an appropriation of the people's money and making a restriction or provision that if the men are to avail themselves of the people's assistance for a pension fund, then the individuals themselves and their beneficiaries should be willing to pay something out of their own funds; but I oppose the feature of trying to tell the men how they shall do it. I think it ought to be a voluntary proposition so far as the men are concerned. A man should be allowed to choose whether he wants to go into the pension fund or not; and if he elects that he wants to become a beneficiary of the fund he should be willing to help to maintain that fund by contributing a portion of his salary to it. I would not like to have it go down in the Record that I approved that part of the ordinance which requires the City Controller to deduct the sum of $2.50 from each fireman's pay every month.

"I cannot defeat the passage of the ordinance because of my opposition to this feature of the bill, so I desire to vote for the whole ordinance. I am doing that for this reason: Every member of this Council and every City official who knows anything about pension funds knows that the pension fund of the firemen (and that is the only one we should discuss today, and all discussion of the policemen's fund should be eliminated) is not on good sound financial basis, and the City should not be compelled to throw money into a bottomless pit. I hope that the passage of this ordinance will be the means of opening up the entire question of pension funds so far as the firemen are concerned and lead to a proper adjustment of it. I hope it will lead to representation by the men themselves for the opening of this question. As it is now, we don't know that the individual fireman is given a statement as to the financial condition of the pension fund. A man may learn through various sources of those who become beneficiaries through death and other causes, but he gets no official information in the shape of a letter or pamphlet by those controlling the funds, showing the exact condition of the funds.

"I hope this condition will be corrected by the passage of this ordinance. The people of Pittsburgh don't know that this fund is in a bad financial condition. We know it, and I hope that the passage of this ordinance will bring this matter to a crisis, and the result will be that the pension fund question will be opened up. We should employ an actuary from an insurance company or pension association to go into the matter and give us the data on which to found a genuine and enduring pension fund.

"While protesting against the power of attorney feature, I think the best interests of all concerned will be advanced by the immediate passage of this ordinance."

Mr. Burke arose and said:

"Mr. President and Members of Council, you were all present at the Finance Committee on last Tuesday, when I said all that I had to say on this ordinance, but my friend and colleague on the left has given me one or two fresh thoughts—one that it is not fair to ask the City to contribute to a fund that is not on a sound financial basis. Just think of it! It is not fair for the City to contribute; how much more unfair it is, then, to ask the poor fireman who is battling for an increase in wages, to take $2.50 from his salary to contribute to a fund that is not on a good, sound financial basis? Just think of it! Firemen who contribute to a fund $2.50 a month (because this bill is mandatory in all its features) do not receive the same benefits out of the fund that they contribute to that the policeman receives for his contribution of $2.50 per month. It is a well-known fact that if a policeman on the pension roll should die tomorrow his beneficiaries would receive $1,000.00, while, on the other hand, the fireman's widow and family would not receive a penny.

"My position on this matter is just the same as it was last week. I believe this bill should be held in abeyance until Council has had an opportunity to consider both pension funds and put them on a good, sound financial basis. This affects two of the most important departments connected with the City government, and we should not ask or require either the policemen or firemen to contribute one cent towards their pension funds. There is plenty of money donated by this City to take care of both these pension funds if the pension funds were shaped in a way and put on a good, sound basis. We would then be protecting the fellow who, in his line of duty, might be injured or killed.

"There is no corporation which has a pension system that asks its employees to contribute anything towards it. I don't go along with the idea of Mr. English that the men ought to contribute something to their pension fund. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, with 60,000 employees, does not ask its employees to contribute, nor does the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, with 40,000 employees.

"The pension funds of the police and firemen should be financed by the City government. This bill could well afford to go over for the next thirty days, and this Council could spare a little of its time and send for the policemen and firemen and, at least, take up the rules and regulations which govern these two pension funds, and change and revise them and put them on a sound basis before you make it mandatory for any set of employees to contribute anything for the maintenance of the pension fund.

"This bill should be referred back to the Finance Committee. Send it back to the committee; don't pass it up to the Mayor for his signature, for I am confident that he will allow it to become a law without his signature. Send it back to the Finance Committee, and let it lay there until you revise these two pension funds. Therefore, Mr. President, I move that this bill be referred back to the Finance Committee."

The Chair:

"I hear no second to the motion. The Clerk will read the bill a third time."

Mr. Rauh arose and said:

"Mr. President, this bill is temporarily bolstering up a tottering pension fund, to temporarily protect the older firemen, who should be taken care of, in case of their death in the near future.

"I vote for this bill feeling that it is only temporary, and until the Firemen's Pension Fund can be satisfactorily adjusted."

And the bill, as read a second time, was agreed to.

And the bill was read a third time and agreed to.

And the title of the bill was read and agreed to.

CONTROLLER.

Pittsburgh, February 7, 1919.
To the Council.

Gentlemen — In the Appropriation Ordinance for 1919 I find an appropriation, No. 1027, Civic and War Committee, amounting to $25,000.00. I am of the opinion that, as the law is at present, the expenditure of moneys for that purpose is illegal.

I sent a communication to Council prior to the preparation of the Appropriation Bill, calling attention to the fact that, unless authority was secured, I would refuse payment of the bills incurred for any war activities. It is now February 7, and a committee has been appointed by the Mayor to prepare and carry out a program. In this connection you will remember, possibly, that the City Attorney has given an opinion that, without an enabling act, no committee of semi-public nature can bind the City nor authorize the issuing of warrants in payment of the bills incurred.

Respectfully yours,

F. S. MORROW,
City Controller.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.
February 6, 1919.

To the President and

Gentlemen—Referring to Council Bill No. 2099, and your request for an estimate of the cost of improving Melwood and Fleetwood streets, I submit the following report:

Melwood street, from Baum boulevard to Denver street, is improved and paved with asphalt. Fleetwood street, from Thirty-third street to the Bloomfield bridge, is also improved, and the portion of Melwood street which is under consideration is the unimproved gap between the Bloomfield bridge and Denver street. Melwood street between these points is located on the hillside, and the topography is rugged and broken, making the cost of the street improvement excessive. There appears to be two possible schemes for improving this street: (A) The building of a very high and heavy retaining wall at an estimated cost of about $80,000.00 and (B) the acquisition of sufficient property on the low side of the street to permit of a large fill and the building of a low retaining wall. The estimated cost of the improvement as outlined under "A" is $140,000.00 and "B" $110,000.00. The material for the embankment could be secured from the hillside along the Bigelow boulevard and thus reduce the expense of the improvement; the estimated quantity of embankment required is 30,000 cubic yards. The length of this improvement is about 1,400 feet, and the grades range from 1.28 per cent. to 3½ per cent. The improvement of Melwood street would furnish another thoroughfare from the low level district of Penn avenue to the Shadyside and Oakland districts of the City.

Very truly yours,

JOHN SWAN,
Director.

Bill No. 2131.

MAYOR'S OFFICE.

Pittsburgh, January 24, 1919.

Mr. John S. Herron, President, and Members of Council, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen—I herewith return, without my approval, Bill No. 1808, Resolution providing that the President of Council assign one man to keep a record of bills introduced in the State Legislature affecting Pittsburgh, and that the President of Council procure the services of a competent person to attend the sessions of the Legislature.

This bill apparently is designed to employ and keep a lobbyist at Harrisburg. It is not clear whether it is to provide for one or two persons. It appropriates no specified amount. It fixes 'no salary or definite compensation. It is common street rumor that it is for the personal benefit of the Councilmen of Pittsburgh. Council should not appropriate or spend the taxpayers' money in any sum whatever for their personal benefit.

The Resolution implies, in the following language, "Some of this legislation is likely to be detrimental to the interests of the taxpayers of Pittsburgh," that our members of the Legislature and our members of the Senate are there for the purpose of legislating against the City's interests instead of legislating for its best interests. I am not willing to be a party to any such inference. Further, I do not approve of spending the City's money for the purposes outlined in this Resolution.

Very respectfully yours,

E. V. BABCOCK

Mayor.

In Council, February 3, 1919. Read and laid on the table for one week.

Which was read, received and filed.

And

Bill No. 1808. Resolution authorizing and directing the President of Council to procure the services of a competent person to be in attendance at the sessions of the Legislature, who shall carefully examine all proposed legislation directly or indirectly affecting the City of Pittsburgh, and furnish the Mayor and Council with copy of same, together with report of its progress in the Legislature and such other information as he may deem important; the expense and compensation of said person shall be paid from Appropriation Code No. 1013-M, on vouchers approved by the Finance Committee.

In Council, January 20, 1919. Committee amendment agreed to, rule suspended, read three times and finally passed.

Which was read.

And on the question, "Shall the bill become a law notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor?"

Mr. Rauh arose and said:

"Mr. President and Members of Council, I regret that the Mayor did not understand the intent of my resolution.

"My idea was to offset any such experiences as Pittsburgh has undergone during the sitting of the past few Legislatures.

"The inference that the Mayor draws from my resolution, namely: 'That our members of the Legislature and our members of the Senate are there for the purpose of legislating against the City's interests instead of legislating for its best interests,' is entirely unjustified. My idea can best be set forth by bringing to your attention what happened during the 1915 session of the Legislature, when a certain bill, known as Senate Bill No. 490 passed the Senate and House, and was ready to become a law through the Governor's signature.

"By the merest accident this pernicious bill was brought to the attention of City Council.

"This bill contemplated assessing the taxpayers of our City one mill for the upkeep of our public libraries, when it costs about one-half a mill for such purpose, the other one-half mill, amounting to over $300,000.00, which sum would have had to be paid, each year, had this bill not have been intercepted.

"At a meeting of Council at that time, June 8, 1915, page No. 279 of the Municipal Record. I introduced a resolution stating that, whereas the people of our City are already too heavily tax ridden, Council prevail upon Governor Brumbaugh that this unjust and unnecessary bill be vetoed.

"After much difficulty, which could have been avoided by having a City representative in Harrisburg at that time, whose function it was to look after such matters for the taxpayers' interests, the bill was vetoed and this unnecessary tax of over $300,000.00 annually was narrowly avoided.

"Other similar instances could be cited to prove that, despite legislators at Harrisburg, with the best intentions, such bills are often overlooked, and our taxpayers here suffer severely.

"This fact conclusively shows why it is necessary to have a representative of the lawmaking body of our City, namely, Council, at Harrisburg. Until we have home rule for our cities this must be done.

"For reasons such as these, I cannot support the Mayor's veto."

Mr. Burke arose and said:

"Mr. President, this bill should be passed over the Mayor's veto. I am going to give you my reason. I can give you many reasons, but I am only going to give you a few of them.

"First, if you don't pass the resolution over his veto, then you agree to the charges he makes in his veto message to Council, and you further agree as to his interpretations of the bill, and I doubt very much if you could find another man within the confines of the City of Pittsburgh who would place such an interpretation on the resolution. The language of the bill does not convey any such a thought as he expresses in his communication and the reason given.

"Now, just bear with me a moment while I read his charge: 'This bill, apparently, is designed to employ and keep a lobbyist at Harrisburg. It is not clear whether it is to provide for one or two persons.' Now, it is absolutely clear, and it specifically states, that there will be only one person employed. Now, further, 'It appropriates no specified amount.' That is true. 'It fixes no salary or definite compensation,' which is true. Council, sitting as the Finance Committee, will fix that compensation when the bills are presented, just as it does other bills. Now another charge, 'It is common street rumor that it is for the personal benefit of the Councilmen of Pittsburgh.' I would ask any man present to point out any phrase or any language in the resolution that conveys the idea or thought to any man that the bill provides for the personal benefit of any member of Council.

"Quoting further, 'Council should not appropriate or spend the taxpayers' money in any sum whatever for their personal benefit.' I want to ask the City Clerk at this juncture, Is there any reply from the Mayor on the resolution that was passed in the Finance Committee recently when the Law Department submitted a bill that was sent to the Senate at Harrisburg to take from the statute books the law that exempts property on the North Side from taxation? Council agreed by resolution to the bill authorizing the City Solicitor to use the power of his office to try to have this bill passed, and asked the Mayor to concur in our action. Has there been an answer to our request?"

The Clerk:

"I have received no answer."

Mr. Burke:

"Has anybody received an answer? These are the things I have in mind: These are the bills—not for any personal benefit of myself or of personal benefit to any other member of this Council—that I would desire to have a man at Harrisburg; and I believe the City Council owes it to the taxpayers of the City of Pittsburgh to have a representative there just the same as every large corporation doing business in the State has a representative in Harrisburg to represent it and look after its interests. I don't believe this Council would be doing its duty to the taxpayers if it did not have a competent man at Harrisburg to look after such bills as would bring $500,000.00 revenue to the City of Pittsburgh; and if His Honor was on the job I believe he would have a man from his department stationed there, and would answer the communication from Council asking for his concurrence and join hand in hand to send a man to Harrisburg to watch this legislation, as well as have the Law Department use its influence to have the legislation passed.

"I have as much confidence in the members of the Assembly of Pennsylvania as any man, and I know something about their duties, too. We have men today who are specialists in every line of business, and when you appoint a man wholly and solely for this one thing he has enough to look after.

"In the interests of the taxpayers of Pittsburgh we should pass this resolution, notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor. The Mayor's attention should be called to the fact that he has not answered our communication to concur with Council to look after the two bills we agreed on with the City Solicitor: one to take from the statute books these old laws that this $39,000,000.00 property is exempt from taxation and to pass laws to bring in revenue to the City, and to see that we get our share and proportion of the automobile license fees that are paid to the State, which would help to keep our streets in first-class condition. Therefore, I say to the Council that it could not do a greater duty than to pass this bill over the Mayor's veto."

Mr. English arose and said:

"Mr. President, I regret very much that the Mayor stoops in his communication and attempts to belittle and belittle this Council. I am surprised that a man of his intelligence would use the language which he does, particularly in the second paragraph of his veto message. I will quote it: 'This bill, apparently, is designed to employ and keep a lobbyist at Harrisburg.' I don't know what was in the Mayor's mind, but I am satisfied that there was not in the mind of any member of Council, is not, and will not be in the future, that the purpose of this proposed legislation was to employ and compensate any person or persons to go down to Harrisburg and lobby for or against the passage of any bill in the Legislature. That is not the intention at all. The Mayor is reading into the resolution the word 'lobbyist,' which is not in the resolution and is not and was not in the minds of the members of Council at all, because the resolution provides that the person appointed shall be in attendance at the sessions of the Legislature and 'procure copies of all bills affecting the City of Pittsburgh and furnish the Mayor and the Council with a copy of same, together with a report of its progress in the Legislature and such other information as he may deem important.' It seems to me very clear that the Mayor has gone quite a distance out of his way to make it appear that it is the intention of the Council to employ a 'lobbyist.'

"He says, 'It is not clear whether it is to provide for one or two persons.' Evidently the Mayor must have been blind or sick when he read the third clause of the resolution. 'That the President of Council be directed to assign one (1) person to keep a record of every bill introduced in the Legislature affecting the City of Pittsburgh.' I am not seeing double now, Mr. President. I take the word one and the figure after it to mean one, not two.

"He further says, 'It appropriates no specified amount.' It is true. We don't know what it will cost, but it will not be more than a few hundred dollars. I am quite positive that we are not going to spend anything like the sum he asked for the repairs of his automobile for 1919, about $2,200.00. The car cost about $3,000.00, and a few months after its purchase he asked for two-thirds of the cost of the machine to keep it going for a year. This in view of the fact that no one in his department has had any experience on this particular type of machine which would justify him in asking for so large an amount for repairs. We are not going to spend anything like $2,200.00 to have a representative at Harrisburg to protect the interests of the taxpayers of Pittsburgh.

"As you all know, we employed a person in the past to attend the sessions of the Legislature and keep Council posted as to the measures introduced in both branches of the Legislature and the progress made on the bills affecting the City of Pittsburgh. To do this we did not have to rob the taxpayers of Pittsburgh.

"Now, he says, further, 'It fixes no salary or definite compensation.' It is right. We might get it done for $300.00 or $1,000.00. It is up to the President of Council. We are not going to send a man to Harrisburg with blank checks to buy votes in the Legislature. The salary or compensation that will be paid to the person appointed will be subject to the closest scrutiny by any taxpayer or person. The payroll must be approved by the City Controller before one penny will be paid out.

"Further he says, 'It is common street rumor that it is for the personal benefit of the Councilmen of Pittsburgh.' I just want to call your attention to the fact that this resolution was introduced in Council on December 2, 1918, fully three or four weeks before the Legislature could convene under the statutes. The public has had plenty of time to protest against this. Our hearings are open to the public and our actions taken in public, and that is one reason we are a successful Council. This resolution has been before the public for two months and I have not received a communication from a taxpayer protesting against the employment of a person to represent the Council at Harrisburg to look out for the interests of Pittsburgh, and I anticipate that no taxpayer is going to bother his head about it, because he has confidence that the Council is looking out for the interests of all the taxpayers.

"It seems to me that the statement by Governor Sproul when he was here Saturday makes the Mayor's charge of personal interest look ridiculous. That is not common street rumor. It is a definite statement by the Governor of Pennsylvania that he is not in favor of ripper legislation. The ripper must have been in the mayor's mind when he wrote in the veto 'that it was the common street rumor that the bill is for the personal benefit of the Councilmen.' Where does he get his information? Is it from his association with the political leaders in Allegheny County? It was not a common street rumor last Tuesday and Wednesday evenings that a statement was printed in Pittsburgh papers in which it was stated that Senator Leslie, ex-Mayor Armstrong and Mayor Babcock decided how the members of the Legislature from Allegheny County were to vote on the national prohibition amendment. This is a plain statement, made by newspapers of Pittsburgh, every one of which is responsible, and I have heard no denial or frank declarations from the Mayor or any of the others concerned that it is not true.

"I am surprised that the Mayor would base a veto message on common rumor, whether he obtained such information on the streets, in City Hall or in church.

"He further quotes, 'that our members of the Legislature and our members of the Senate are there for the purpose of legislating against the City's interests, instead of legislating for its best interests. I am not willing to be a party to any such inference.' From this statement it seems to me that the Mayor is trying to make trouble for the Council and the members of the Legislature from this City and Allegheny County. I think he is making a vast mistake when he attempts such a proposition. We are not challenging the integrity of any member of the Legislature, whether he is from Pittsburgh or Allegheny County or any other part of the State. We simply want information on bills that are introduced in the Legislature at Harrisburg affecting our City.

"The information I am going to give is not common street rumor. It was reported in our papers some ten days ago that the Mayor of Pittsburgh, who sends this common street rumor veto message to Council, was in favor of a proposed bill at Harrisburg providing for eight police magistrates, but sidestepped an opinion on the salary of $4,000.00 each. It is not common street rumor; it is a fact; we don't need eight police magistrates. We recognize that, and we will deal with that question when it comes up for consideration. Why should we permit the Legislature, without protest, to saddle onto the taxpayers of Pittsburgh eight positions at $4,000.00 each a year when the power for fixing salaries of City employees is vested in the Council of Pittsburgh? We are now getting police magistrates to serve for $2,500.00 a year. If that is not enough salary they should resign. Why are they still hanging on for $2,500.00? They are still willing to hang on, in spite of the fact that Council refused to confirm the Mayor's appointments. The amount that is proposed to pay the police magistrates would mean a total increase of $12,000.00 over the amount now paid them, and the City Council could well afford to spend $10,000.00 to save $12,000.00. The Mayor, in his business practice, would not permit such a thing to occur. He is willing to go out and spend money to further his business, but attempts to stop Council from protecting the taxpayers of the City. I have no quarrel with the Mayor. What I say I say in all sincerity and honesty. I propose to go with him when I think he is right, and I shall oppose him when I think he is wrong. I think he is wrong in this instance. It occurs to me that someone has misled him, and I am going to vote to make this resolution a law notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor, because I think the bill is meritorious and, from my experience in Council and my experience with the Legislature, I think I am justified in voting as I do. In the closing days of the last budget we affected a saving of 30 per cent. in the tax rate submitted by the Mayor. I am going to close by asking that in addition to the remarks I have made, that the second paragraph of the leading editorial in the Pittsburgh Post of this morning be added:

"It is time that the public gave attention to the forces in the communities that are originating legislation, so that those meriting support may be given it and the other kind exposed and repudiated. Mark those who come out openly with their projects and invite public discussion and those who try to sneak their measures through. There are instances of a few individuals taking it upon themselves to force revolutionary changes that the public has heard nothing about until the measures appear in the Legislature. It is an insult to the intelligence of any community. What changes are brought about should represent the best thought of the citizenship instead of the greed of a few politicians."

"That is what was in my mind when I voted for the resolution originally and what is in my mind today. This resolution has been before the Council for the past sixty days and not a protest has been raised against it by any taxpayer. On the other hand, we have a letter here from the best element of the community commending Council's efforts to help the City, and this editorial which I have quoted is a warning to watch all legislation at Harrisburg.

"For the reasons stated I shall vote for the resolution becoming a law notwithstanding the veto of the Mayor."

Mr. Robertson arose and said:

"Mr. President, in regard to this bill I cannot say much, but I have had conversations with the different members of the House and Senate. I have a letter from Senator W. W. Mearkle, which is as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Robertson—As per my conversation with you some days ago, I have made arrangements to have the History of the House and Senate Bills sent to the President of the Council every week, also the Legislative Journal. The history of the bills will give you the title of every bill that is endorsed in the Senate and in the House. It will also show you just what position they are on the calendar, or whether they are in the committees.

"It occurred to me, after talking with you, that it would not be necessary to have every piece of legislation introduced at Harrisburg sent to the Council, as there are introduced pieces of legislation that in no way affect the County or the City, and the history above referred to will give you the title showing what section the bills will affect, and if there is any particular piece of legislation in which the Council is interested, I shall be very pleased to forward to them or you any or as many pieces as you may want.

"Yours very truly,

"WILLIAM A. MEARKLE."

"I think if this Council should get this legislation as Mr. Mearkle suggests and if any bills pertain to the City, the members of this Council can go down on the day they come up and, if they are detrimental to the interests of the City, protest against them.

"The language the Mayor uses in his veto message does not appeal to me as being fair, but I think his position is well taken."

Mr. McArdle arose and said:

"I would just like to say, appreciating the very commendable attitude that Senator Mearkle has taken, that following his course would not have enabled this Council to have known a single thing about the bill to which I referred, the wharf bill. I dare say that there are not ten lawyers in the City of Pittsburgh practicing at the Allegheny County Bar, on examination of that bill, would have known its application to the wharf matter."

Mr. Rauh arose and said:

"Mr. President, regarding the letter read by my colleague on the left, I wish to state that I have the highest regards for Senator Mearkle, but everybody knows that a week in the legislative body of the State is a long time—sometimes very short and sometimes very long—and we also know that very frequently bills are introduced and amendments tacked onto those bills which give it an altogether different meaning; and that is why we want the man there, not only to watch the bills, but the amendments, which sometimes have the snake in the grass."

Mr. Burke arose and said:

"We want a man on the job every minute, and we don't want to discover by accident at the last minute legislation that is detrimental to the City."

Mr. Winters arose and said:

"Mr. President, I want to say that I am going to vote to sustain the Mayor's veto, but I don't want to go on record as agreeing to the sentiments expressed by the Mayor. I think his language is ill-advised, intemperate and makes use of expressions which would have been better if omitted.

"He speaks of two persons, and I can find no other reason in the statement unless it was coupled up with the declaration of the street rumors. I don't think the Council should judge the Mayor by street rumors, any more than the Mayor should judge the members of Council by street rumors.

"I have no concern about the personal equation in the bill, as I have not been disturbed about the fate of the Council. I think that has been in such shape as to cause no apprehension on our part at any time.

"I am willing, however, to believe that many of the bills before the Legislature, such as the wharf legislation, in which the legal department of the City is vitally interested, should be looked after. If the Law Department don't get the reports on the bills that are introduced at Harrisburg and make a study of them, and inquire into the nature and character of them, as it affects the City of Pittsburgh particularly, then I would think it is about time that some one gave instructions to the Law Department of the great City of Pittsburgh, the second city in the State of Pennsylvania, to do so, and I think they, without instruction, ought to be making an investigation of every bill that is presented affecting the City of Pittsburgh.

"I want to go on record to the extent of disagreeing with the Mayor's language and some of the insinuations in his veto message, but I am willing to sustain the Mayor's veto under the thought that any responsibility or any failure that might arise through the neglect to do what was recommended by Council, shall rest upon the shoulders of the Mayor himself."

MAYOR'S OFFICE.

Pittsburgh, February 13, 1919.

Mr. John S. Herron, President, and

Members of Council of the City of Pittsburgh.

Dear Sirs—I return herewith, without my approval, Bill No. 2058, a resolution exonerating the First Christian Church of Banksville from payment of assessments for sewers.

This is practically the same as your bill No. 1409, which I could not approve of and wrote you January 8, setting out the following reasons, which I herewith repeat:

"Accompanying this resolution is a statement from the City Solicitor that there is no legal reason why they should be exonerated from their assessments. Another letter in the file by the City Clerk states that the assessments are a lawful and legal claim against the church.

"Exonerating an assessment of this kind opens a door so wide to many other cases and establishes such a very bad precedent that even, though the circumstances might be extenuating, I cannot give my approval."

Very respectfully yours,

E. V. BABCOCK,

Mayor.

Which was read.

Mr. McArdle moved

That the communication be received and filed.

Which motion prevailed.

And

Bill No. 2058. Resolution exonerating the First Christian Church of Banksville from payment of assessments at No. 703, January Term, 1918, of $285.00 for sewerage on Broadway avenue, and at No. 1457, April Term, 1918, for $54.00, for sewer on Olcott way, together with all court costs due thereon, the same to be charged to the City, and providing that Bill No. 1409, relating to the same matter, be repealed.

In Council, February 3, 1919. Rule suspended, read three times and finally passed.

Which was read.

And on the question, "Shall the bill become a law notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor?"

The ayes and noes were taken, agreeable to law, and were:

Ayes—Messrs.

Burke	Herron (President)
Dalley	McArdle
English	Winters

Noes—Messrs.

Rauh	Robertson

Ayes—6.

Noes—2.

And there being two-thirds of the votes of Council in the affirmative, the bill became a law notwithstanding the objections of the Mayor.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS.

Bill No. 2133. An Ordinance entitled, "An Ordinance authorizing and directing the issuance and sale of bonds of the City of Pittsburgh in the aggregate principal amount of $1,134,000.00 for the purpose of funding existing unfunded indebtedness of the City, consisting of contractors' claims, claims for damages arising from the opening, widening and improving of streets, and the construction of sewers and other floating indebtedness, and providing for the redemption of said bonds and the payment of interest thereon."

In Council, February 10, 1919. Read a first time.

Which was read a second time and agreed to.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Burke presented

No. 2229. Resolved, That Council authorize the Transit Commission to investigate and report as to the feasibility of changing the course of the Allegheny river from Ross Grove to Emsworth, and that it become part of the Ohio river.

Which was read.

Mr. Burke moved

The adoption of the resolution.

Mr. Burke arose and said:

"Mr. President—In presenting this resolution to Council, I do so after having given careful study to the facts with the result that I believe if the Transit Commission make the necessary survey between Ross Grove and Emsworth or a point nearby, it will be found the water course can be changed without too great an expense, so that it will be emptied into the Ohio river.

"Council must realize the advantage that will accrue to the City of Pittsburgh if this project can be carried through.

"So far as I can learn, this is a natural course with the exception of one little knoll, and this is at West View Park; came by some disruption years ago or earth disturbance.

"We realize that there should be something done to relieve the congested conditions in the downtown caused by heavy traffic.

"Personally, I believe an underground transportation system, not a loop, but a tube, from the East End to and through the North Side, and from the South Side to and through the North Side; owned by the City, operated by the City, in the interest of the people, under similar plans as recommended by Mr. Morris of the Transit Commission, is the only solution of the street railway problem in Pittsburgh.

"Now, if we go under the ground with the street railway we must have a place to dump the ground taken from the underground tunnels. I think no better place could be used than the Allegheny river from the Point to Sharpsburg. This would do away with the cesspool that Council's attention was called to the other day from Mr. Hartman, who appeared before it in the interest of the landlords, when he said that the river was nothing more or less than a cesspool. All the water refuse could be carried through a tube underneath the railway tubes that would be laid in the river bed to connect Pittsburgh proper and the North Side, and the ground taken from the tunnels could be used to fill in the river bed.

"All the wharf properties now owned by the City could be put to great use and would bring in more revenue than the developments would cost. The project will be seven miles in length from Ross Grove to Emsworth. I believe the land could be purchased for $100.00 per acre between Ross Grove and Emsworth and the land that could be utilized from the Point to Sharpsburg, after the bed of the river was filled in, part of it would bring in as high as $200,000.00 per acre. Along the new course of the river factory sites could be laid out. This would do away with the raising of bridges and the construction of new bridges from the City proper to the North Side. This expenditure would be approximately one-tenth of the amount the City would realize if the property, after being filled in, were sold.

"I think where the bed of the river is at present a great boulevard could be built, taking it from the Point to Sharpsburg. There this boulevard would intersect with the boulevard in Highland Park and this, then, connect with the Baum boulevard and from there into the Bigelow boulevard, and then to the Point by the way of Water street."

Mr. Rauh moved

To amend the motion by referring the resolution to the Committee on Public Service and Surveys.

Which motion prevailed.

Mr. McArdle called up

DEPARTMENT OF CITY CONTROLLER.

Pittsburgh, February 24, 1919.

To the Council.

Gentlemen—Under existing laws we have to advertise the sale of bonds three separate weeks before the sale. As any delay in the passage of the Funded Debt Loan Ordinance will bring it for sale about the same time as the government loan will be offered, and I think it advantageous to the City to have them sold before that time, I recommend its passage today. The Mayor's private secretary says he is positive the Mayor will sign it as soon as it is passed, and he will, at my request, stating the urgency in the matter, forward it at once.

Respectfully,

E. S. MORROW,
City Controller.

No. 2253. Whereas, The City of Pittsburgh is the owner of many lots and pieces of property abutting upon its improved and unimproved streets, many of which properties are located in, or in close proximity to the producing and manufacturing centers of the City and are vacant, unused and unproductive properties, bringing the City no return whatever; and

Whereas, There is a scarcity of homes and houses suitable for residences of the family of ordinary means and the working or labor population of the City; the housing proposition in its development becoming now a vital problem, which is already retarding its progress and should receive the immediate and careful consideration of the municipality and all others desirous of the people's welfare; and

Whereas, The renters, by the scarcity of houses, are more or less at the mercy of many avaricious landlords and the rent profiteer, which condition could be largely overcome by the City utilizing its vacant property for homes; and, further, under the graded tax law, the City would set the example and put into actual practice the theory it advocates for others; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the City Solicitor of the City of Pittsburgh be requested to furnish to Council an opinion as to the legality and the authority the City may have for using and developing its vacant property in the building of homes, and directing the City Solicitor, in the event of the illegality of the City's authority or rights, to prepare a bill for presentation to the Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, granting to municipalities the right and authority to thus utilize and develop their properties and providing for the expenditure of public moneys for that purpose.

Which was read.

Mr. Winters moved

The adoption of the resolution, and said:

"Mr. President, Nations and municipalities can do only one of two things. They must either progress or retrograde. There is no standing still.

"We have been listening here for a couple of weeks to the complaints of rent payers about increases in rents. The only answer to their complaints has been that there is a scarcity of houses. No remedy for that situation has been advanced by any of the property owners who have appeared before us.

"One speaker who appeared before this body a week or two ago quoted an old saying that, 'Fools build houses for wise men to live in.'

"This speaker and others who appeared here were unanimous in saying that there is no profit in building houses to rent. Every landlord whom I have spoken to has said the same thing. And, in addition to that, I might say that you will remember that a man who is one of the largest builders of homes in the City of Pittsburgh (I know he is the largest builder of that kind that appeared before Council at the hearings on the rent profiteering practice), a man who was referred to by one of the speakers as the 'Kaiser' of landlords in Pittsburgh, made the statement that a workingman could not live in Pittsburgh on account of the housing conditions and the high cost of building materials.

"This is not a new condition. Landlords have been telling me this same thing for years. The scarcity of houses has not been brought about by the war. The great influx of laborers here on war work simply intensified a situation that had been with us for many years before the war and was constantly growing worse. Private capital was unanimous in saying it did not pay to build for rent.

"If this be true, then it is certainly the duty of the municipality to take steps to remedy the condition. We must either go forward or back. If we are to attract and hold a satisfied working population in this City we must give them decent homes to live in, and we must furnish them at a rental that will be within their means. If private capital cannot do this, then it is to the interests and welfare of the municipality to take that work in hand.

"I do not anticipate that the City could enter into the business of building houses to rent without opposition. But I do believe that it is the duty of the City to put the idle lands it now holds into use. I believe this City should build at once 500 or 1,000 modern homes of six to eight rooms each. These houses should be constructed of the best building material. The workmanship should be second to none. The plumbing and sanitary features should be unsurpassed. The rentals should be only enough to cover the cost of maintenance and provide a sinking fund. They should be sold to any homeseeker desiring to possess himself of one of these homes, and should be sold in such a way and on such terms that workingmen would be encouraged to own their homes.

"We have tried the plan of private capital furnishing homes for the workers. The plan is a failure. Owners of such properties say they would never again build such properties, as there is no money in them. Perhaps the City would not reap a direct profit from such an undertaking. But unless we get busy and begin to progress here in Pittsburgh the time will come when bats will be roosting in the ruins of the buildings we now have and Pittsburgh will be only an interesting deserted village. Perhaps that is an exaggeration, but it is not an exaggeration to say that good American workingmen will not want to locate here and this City will be turned over entirely to foreigners, who have no idea of what America means.

"The business men of this City know that their prosperity depends absolutely on the workers. Without them this City could not be. If the great stores of this City were deprived of the patronage of the men who labor with their hands for day wages they would close their doors in a week. If we want to keep a class of workers here who will support the great business institutions which have grown up here to serve them, the municipality will have to do its duty to the workers. Private capital says it cannot do it, because there is no profit in it. Then the City will have to do it, even with the prospect of profit entirely eliminated.

"This is undeniably a radical step in City development. But Pittsburgh is confronted with a condition that must be remedied. I do not believe that the cry of high prices of materials need interrupt this development for an instant. If brick manufacturers, plumbing contractors, lumbermen, supply dealers of every description knew that Pittsburgh was to erect 500 or 1,000 modern dwellings this summer they would be crowding in here to give us bargain prices. The builder of a single house might find prices high now. The City building several hundred will get reasonable prices, provide labor for thousands of mechanics, make homes for thousands of American people and solve the housing question in the only sensible way it can possibly be solved."

Mr. Bauh arose and said:

"I heartily approve of the resolution. Pittsburgh needs more houses. As my colleague on the left has stated, we have heard much lately about this rent profiteering proposition and that some landlords are acting the way they are is because of the scarcity of houses. Now, I will tell you what the scarcity of houses is doing. First of all, I want to say that we have several thousand pieces of property, some having houses on and some vacant lots, and you know that it is a hard proposition to sell an empty lot, and I believe the City would profit if small houses were erected on this vacant property. I don't mean that the City should build on property that is unsuitable for housing purposes, as we have a lot of such property. There are lots in suitable locations which could be utilized for this purpose and which would bring in a good revenue to the City if put to the uses proposed under this resolution.

"I wish to call to your attention a serious proposition that was stated to me. A gentleman told me this morning that in one newspaper in Pittsburgh there were thirty advertisements for houses to let, apartments to let, and twenty-nine of those advertisements stated that they would not rent the apartments or houses to people who had children. Now, this is a serious proposition.

"If the City built small homes, as has been suggested in the resolution just presented, the workingman with children could rent them."

"Another serious thing that should be taken into consideration. You know that a great many people will have to live outside the City limits because they cannot find suitable homes in Pittsburgh. And these boroughs refuse to join Pittsburgh, to make a Greater City. We are losing the population and the taxpayers unless we get to work and use some strenuous influence and do something suggested by the resolution. I am for the passage of the resolution."

Mr. McArdle moved

To amend the resolution, after the words "right and authority to" by inserting the words "acquire land and to."

Mr. Winters (with the consent of the seconder) accepted the amendment.

And the question recurring on the adoption of the resolution, as amended.

The motion prevailed.

Mr. Garland presented

No. 2254. Resolved, That we request the City Solicitor for an opinion as to whether, under his constitutional rights, a landlord has the right to restrict his renting to families without small children, or as to the right of a landlord of a residence or apartment to remove a family, otherwise a satisfactory tenant, because of the arrival during leasehold, of a child or children.

This practice appears on its face to be un-American, tending, as it does, towards race suicide.

Also as to whether this practice can be corrected legally, through an act of Legislature, by Act of Congress, or do the rights exercised under contract forbid a correction of this condition.

Which was read.

Mr. Garland moved

The adoption of the resolution.

The Chair presented

No. 2255. Communication from the Renters' Anti-Extortion League of Pittsburgh, transmitting resolutions adopted by said league suggesting that the City Assessors receive and investigate all complaints of tenants or lessees in the City relative to excessive rentals demanded by landlords, etc.

Which was read, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

And on motion of Mr. Bailey,

Council adjourned.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

February 28, 1919.

To the City Council.

Gentlemen—Referring to Council Bill No. 2100, which is a resolution requesting me to furnish your committee with an estimate of the cost of grading, paving, curbing and otherwise improving Butler street, from the end of the present pavement to the Heth's Run bridge, I beg to advise as follows:

Butler street, from the end of the present pavement to the Heth's Run bridge, has a total length of 4,235 feet, or about eight-tenths of a mile. It is a side-hill street, with a very steep transverse grade, the upper side of the street being incut and the lower side requiring retaining walls for its support. About one-third of its length has a width of 50 feet and the remaining two-thirds 60 feet. The roadway is 36 feet and located therein is a double-track street railway. The grades range from 0.5 per cent. to 6 per cent. The estimated cost of the improvement, including the building of a sewer, is $240,000.00, and of this amount it is estimated that $200,000.00 will be assessed against the City. The reason for this large assessment against the City is due to the topography of the land adjacent to the street and its low valuation. On the lower side of the street extensive retaining walls will be required and no assessment is possible, and the low valuation of the property on the upper side precludes any considerable assessment.

This portion of Butler street is one of the main thoroughfares of the City and should be improved in order to complete and connect up the outer Butler street district with Highland Park and make possible a completely improved highway extending from Butler street and Sixty-second street to Frankstown avenue and Fifth avenue extension. In other words, the improvement is general rather than local in character.

Yours very truly,

JOHN SWAN,
Director.

DEPARTMENT OF LAW.

Pittsburgh, February 25, 1919.

To the Honorable, the Council of the City of Pittsburgh.

Gentlemen—Under date of February 25, 1919, I received a communication from the City Clerk, requesting to be advised concerning Bill No. 2253, being a resolution having to do with the construction by the City of Pittsburgh of homes and suitable houses on property now owned by the City.

I have examined this bill. I am in entire accord with it from a sympathetic and moral viewpoint, but, considering the idea which runs through the resolution from a legal viewpoint, I am sorry to say that, in my opinion, there is no remedy. The City of Pittsburgh, it is true, rents a number of its properties. All of these properties, on which residences are constructed, the City became the owner thereof by due process of law; by exercising its rights to enforce the collection of taxes and improvement claims, and through legal channels we became possessed of such property. The City of Pittsburgh cannot engage in a business which would be foreign to municipal government. The construction of houses at the expense of taxpayers for the purpose of renting the same and deriving a revenue, no matter how small, is not a function of municipal government; it is a business in which many people in our City are engaged.

The cost of living, in all of its various phases, has increased materially in recent years, and one of the elements of this terrific cost consists of the demands made by landlords. Rent is controlled by the supply of houses and the corresponding demand therefor. A tenant enters into another man's property under a lease, which is nothing more than a contract, and with that contract we have no right to interfere.

It seems to me that one step forward in protecting our people might be considered in this way. We have a number of very desirable building sites. If builders would agree to build homes on these available sites, submitting to the Council plans and specifications for their proposed buildings, and agree that for a period of years the rent asked for specific homes would not exceed a definite sum per month, the City might well afford, in these trying times, to sell these available home sites at a price greatly reduced from the selling and listing price of today.

As to preparing a bill for the consideration of the Legislature, giving the City the right to construct the residences on its available property, permit me to say that, in my humble judgment, such an act could not pass the Legislature, and, if it did, it would be unconstitutional.

Respectfully yours,

STEPHEN STONE,
City Solicitor.

The very fact that these bills are presented shows that there is something wrong or they would not have to submit them to us for approval.

"I don't believe the companies should be deprived of money that is due them, but in this instance I am not entirely satisfied with the transaction and must register my protest against same.

"I want to serve notice upon my colleagues that I am going to ask that an item of $500,000.00 be included in the proposed people's bond issue for the purpose of having the City do its own work. As you all know, there is now at the disposal of the City $90,000.00 to build disposal plants and, with the $500,000.00 additional, I believe sufficient money will be at the City's disposal to do all the work incidental to the collection, removal and disposal of garbage and rubbish in this City. As to the method to be employed, that can be worked out later."

DEPARTMENT OF LAW.

Pittsburgh, February 25, 1919.

To the Honorable, the Council of the City of Pittsburgh.

Gentlemen—I am requested to advise you concerning Bill No. 2254, as concerning the rights of a landlord with respect to families having children. Please be advised:

For some considerable time past I have heard that landlords were refusing to lease their properties to people who have children. To say that such a practice is un-American is putting it mildly. Our children are the greatest factor in our development as a nation, and it is to them we must look as the years roll by to protect our country and to protect our national ideals. No law is on the statute books, and I fail to see how any law can weather the gale of court criticism, which would compel a landlord to renew a lease with any tenant. A landlord does not have to have an excuse of any kind for insisting that the relation of landlord and tenant be dissolved on the termination of the lease. That is his inalienable right, as it is likewise the inalienable right of the tenant to move if he so desires for no reason whatsoever upon the termination of the contract or lease. There is sufficient law in the statute books to protect a tenant from ouster by his landlord in the event, during the tenancy, a man and his wife are blessed by having children.

The meat of the question, as I understand it, is connected solely with the rights of the tenant on and after the expiration of the contract or lease. The contract having expired, the tenant has no right to remain.

Respectfully yours,

STEPHEN STONE,
City Solicitor.

No. 2373.
CITY OF PITTSBURGH, PA.
March 17, 1919.
President and Members of Council of the City of Pittsburgh.

Gentlemen—I hereby nominate, to serve during my term of office as Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh, Lieutenant-Colonel B. L. Succop to be Police Magistrate.

This nomination is submitted in keeping with the action of your Honorable Body in appropriating the money necessary to provide an additional Police Magistrate. It is my desire to re-establish the South Side Police Court.

Lieutenant-Colonel Succop is 41 years old, has a wife and two children and lives at 1110 Carson street. He is at present the highest ranking officer of the old Eighteenth Regiment. He saw service in the Spanish-American war and also on the Mexican border. He has just returned from France, where he served his country with great distinction as lieutenant-colonel of the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry. During his connection with the One Hundred and Eleventh Infantry he was the summary court officer of his regiment. Previous to his going to the front he was in the real estate business.

Lieutenant-Colonel Succop is a high type of a man. His character, temperament and education and experience as summary court officer of his regiment, in my opinion, eminently fit him for the position.

Very respectfully yours,

E. V. BABCOCK,
Mayor.

Which was read.

Mr. Winters moved

That the communication be received and filed and the appointment of the Mayor confirmed.

Mr. Winters arose and said:

"Mr. President, it is with a great deal of pleasure that I move to have the nomination of Lieutenant-Colonel Succop as Police Magistrate confirmed by Council.

"I have known Colonel Succop since birth. He was born within a square of my birthplace, and we have been good friends all our lives. I know he will be a credit to the administration and to the City of Pittsburgh. I think he has the sense of responsibility of the position to administer the duties in a way which I believe is the proper one for a Police Magistrate.

"Lieutenant-Colonel Succop is a high type of man. He has the temperament and humanity and the good common sense, together with his military training, to make a good Police Magistrate; and if he makes as good a Police Magistrate as his father, who occupied the same position on the South Side, I know he will prove entirely satisfactory.

"I take it that the Mayor's appointment is largely a recognition to the soldier boys who went from this vicinity to help win the world war, and Colonel Succop has an enviable record in that war. He served in the National Guard and Army for twenty-two years, having seen service in the Spanish-American war, on the Mexican border, and more recently in the great world war. It was his privilege and honor to participate in the second battle of the Marne, when the Huns were turned back and which made it possible for the Allies to save the world for civilization; just as the boys from Pennsylvania turned back the Confederate army at Gettysburg and saved the Union. He was in the battles of Chateau Thierry, the Marne and Pismes, and when the armistice went into effect he was standing on the firing line, just outside the strongly fortified city of Metz, with his watch in his hand to signal that the time had arrived to stop hostilities. It was at this place that the Americans were preparing their offensive preparatory to capturing this strongly fortified city.

"This appointment of Colonel Succop is not only a compliment to the soldier for his military record, but is also a compliment to the type of man he is. His personal character and his personal standing in the community makes a very good combination with his military record, and I think Mayor Babcock should be complimented on his appointment."

Mr. Rauh arose and said:

"Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to vote for the confirmation of the Mayor's nomination of Lieutenant-Colonel Succop as Police Magistrate. The Mayor is to be complimented for selecting a man of the type of Mr. Succop and also for the reason that the position, being on the South Side, should be filled by a man from that section of the City. Mr. Succop's military training eminently fits him for the position."

Mr. McArdle arose and said:

"Mr. President, I want to say that I am pleased to be able to support with so much satisfaction to myself the appointment that the Mayor has made. I have had the pleasure of an acquaintance with Lieutenant-Colonel Succop for several years, and whether he had achieved the record that is now his in the military service or not, he would still come to us splendidly equipped and fitted for the performance of the duties that will be his under this appointment. I am extremely glad that the Mayor has made such a wise choice in the selection of the man who has to do this extremely important work, and it is with gratification that I vote for the confirmation of Lieutenant-Colonel Succop's appointment."

Mr. English arose and said:

"Mr. President, having cast the deciding vote in Finance Committee to include in the budget the appropriation for one additional Police Magistrate, it gives me pleasure at this time to vote for the confirmation of the appointment of Lieutenant-Colonel Succop."

"It is an honor as well as a pleasure to have the opportunity to welcome to the service of the City a man who has served our country so well. Lieutenant-Colonel Succop is well equipped to serve the City. This opportunity argues well for the future, and I hope His Honor, the Mayor, will continue to appoint men of the temperament, character and ability of Lieutenant-Colonel Succop."

Mr. Burke arose and said:

"Mr. President, as one member who voted against the creation of another position of Police Magistrate, I want to say that it gives me great pleasure to second the motion of my colleague and esteemed friend of the South Side for the confirmation of the appointment of Colonel Succop. Mayor Babcock is to be commended for selecting such a man as Lieutenant-Colonel Succop. I have known him for a good many years. He is well fitted and well qualified to perform the duties of a Police Magistrate, and he will do splendid service and will be a credit to the City of Pittsburgh."

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Rauh presented

No. 2381.

THE RIGHTS OF A TENANT.

A bill which has been introduced at Harrisburg "concerning landlords and tenants and to afford relief to tenants where excessive rents are charged," offers the vehicle by which the problem of the dispossessed or "boosted" tenant, which has been a continuing disturbance in Pittsburgh for the past six months and is just now becoming aggravated, may be reached for investigation and discussion.

Reduced from its legal verbiage of the statute, the measure provides, in substance, that where a landlord shall seek to oust a tenant or by similar process shall attempt to advance the rent from the price agreed upon at the time of hiring, and the tenant shall allege that the new demand is exorbitant, the latter shall have the right of appeal to the Court of Common Pleas in the County, and that his petition setting up the claim that the rental asked is unfair or unreasonable shall act as a stay on the writ of dispossession. Within thirty days the court shall grant a hearing and if, in its judgment, the claim is well founded, an issue shall be ordered to be tried before a jury, who may determine what shall be a fair rental for the property.

Hundreds of families in Pittsburgh who lay no claim to familiarity or even understanding of all the intricacies of the law of property and, therefore, will not attempt to argue legal points involved, will feel that the proposed law squares with what is to their mind justice and equity, and because it appears to reach and remedy what in their recent experience has cut deeply as an act of injustice, its spirit and purpose deserve to be recognized, even if in its present form it may be open to objection.

The complaints of the tenant householders in the City, which have been recurrent since a sudden influx of workers and their families created an acute condition in the housing supply of the City last year, are not wisely to be ignored or lightly treated. The actual shortage in the housing supply which existed for a time no longer exists in equal degree. New construction, under Federal patronage, has offered some relief, and still more has been afforded by the scattering of the temporary population. But, in spite of these changed circumstances, which should have their effect in the operation of the law of supply and demand, rentals are even more difficult to obtain in the City than they were six months ago, and the tenant with no place to go is at the mercy of his landlord, who may require him to pay an arbitrary advance in rent or may ask him to buy at an arbitrary price, with no alternative of rental. The terms in either case may be grossly unjust, if the landlord be so minded, but the tenant who must maintain a roof over his head and those of his family has no redress or recourse. Such a situation is by no means imaginary but is an accurate statement of the situation in which many tenants have found themselves and to which they have been compelled to accommodate their budgets, already hard pressed by general living prices.

Resultant murmurings and discontent are not surprising, and if it be true that the law of the Commonwealth, as it stands today, provides no recourse and relief for them, it ought to be recognized as the part of good and wise law-making to search out the facts of the situation in detail and to devise an adequate statute of relief. Speculation to the extent of manipulating corners and forcing artificial levels of prices in the food markets and the necessities of life is generally condemned, although law has not been found adequate to prevent it, but none of these abuses is more serious in its effect on the community than the application of such tactics in the market of homes.

MOTIONS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Mr. Robertson presented

No. 2424. Whereas, The Twenty-third ward of the City of Pittsburgh is one of the most densely populated wards of the City and has no playground; the children being compelled to play on the streets, thus endangering their lives by reason of the excessive automobile and vehicle traffic on these streets; and

dents would be greatly lessened; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Director of the Department of Public Works be authorized and directed to allow the children the use of the entire East Park, east of Federal street, for playground purposes.

Which was read and referred to the Committee on Public Works.

Also

No. 2425. Whereas, The Good Roads Convention, held in the City of Erie, Pa. on January 20, 1917, selected the highway from Pittsburgh to Erie to be known as the "Perry Highway," to be rebuilt and reconstructed as a paved road extending from Pittsburgh to Perrysville, to Wexford, to Zellenople, to Porterville, to Harlansburg, to Mercer, to Sheakleyville, to Meadville, to Saegertown, to Venango, to Edinboro, to McKean and to Kearsarge, to Erie; and

Whereas, The Perry Highway is the most direct road from Pittsburgh to Erie the two largest cities in Western Pennsylvania, and its improvement will afford the farmer an all-year round market for his product; will encourage agricultural pursuits and will benefit the City merchant by reason of better transportation facilities; and

Whereas, The Pittsburgh district justly demands a trunk line road by the shortest and best route to the City of Erie; and

Whereas, The Perry Highway Association, a chartered organization, has encouraged the prompt construction and maintenance of the Perry Highway as a paved, permanent, commercial and military highway, and has the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, the Automobile Club of Pittsburgh, the North Side Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, the Board of Commerce of Erie and many other organizations throughout the several counties traversed by the Perry Highway; therefore, be it Resolved, That the Council of the City of Pittsburgh petition Governor William C. Sproul, of the State of Pennsylvania, and Highway Commissioner Lewis S. Sadler, of the State Highway Department, to improve the said Perry Highway and maintain it as a broad, hard-surfaced, permanent, commercial and military highway and that from this improvement lateral roads be constructed to county seats and other principal cities and towns.

Which was read.

Mr. Robertson moved

The adoption of the resolution.

Which motion prevailed.

Mr. English presented

No. 2426. Whereas, The safety, comfort and welfare of the people of Pittsburgh and surrounding districts have been abused and menaced for years through the inability of the Pittsburgh Railways Company to maintain a decent and adequate street car transportation system; and

Whereas, It is only a matter of time until some change or reorganization of the Pittsburgh Railways Company must take place; and

Whereas, The City of Pittsburgh should be in a position to control the Pittsburgh Railways Company to furnish decent and adequate transportation, including rapid transit at reasonable cost; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Council and the Mayor hereby direct the attention of the people to careful study of Section 15, Article 9, of the Pennsylvania State Constitution, as amended November 1, 1913, which section permits the City of Pittsburgh to acquire and construct subways and street railways; and be it further

Resolved, That the matter of street car transportation and rapid transit be submitted to the voters of the City of Pittsburgh at the municipal election for bond improvements and, in order to avoid confusion, that a separate ballot be provided; and be it finally

Resolved, That if any item regarding transit or street car transportation is submitted to the electorate, said item shall contain a clause which shall require that control of any transportation system which might be purchased or built by the City shall always remain in the hands of the people.

Which was read and referred to the Committee on Public Service and Surveys.

Mr. Robertson presented

Which was read and referred to the Committee on Finance.
